Those Poor Turkeys Nobody Ate An Eagle Be Thankful, Very Canada, Australia, U. S.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Many million turkeys gave up their lives of yesterday's celebration. Observe that none had prepared for what was bound to come. The gobblers had been content to swell up their necks with wind—it's done in Washington—and spread their feathers. The turkey hens did not even swell their necks and had sweet womanly hatred of war.

The poor things never thought of fighting, did not even know enough to fly away into the woods. That makes turkey farming profitable. May this nation not switch from the eagle to the turkey. No eagles were eaten yesterday, you'll notice.

Still cause to be thankful as well as worried. The Atlantic is 3,000 miles wide, the Pacific twice as wide and more. Our chemists are working on gases and bombs that are to war now what cannon and battleships used to be.

The Postmaster-General, Mr. Hays, encouraged by the President, is working at flying machine development, seeking to find useful, profitable work for machines and trained flying men that would be our reliance in war.

We are talking some dangerous nonsense about relying on the good will of other people, but we are not QUITE crazy, be thankful for that.

Our State Department has offered to scrap eight hundred millions' worth of battleships and other menaces. But we have not committed ourselves as to submarines, which must be our real defence—with aircraft—and Congress may yet have something to say about destroying what cost the taxpayers, and little people whose rent and labor pay the taxes, $800,000,000.

That Washington conference—which threatened to drag us into some sort of league under another name, has started half a dozen fights and hatreds among European nations—that should warn us. A little talk of French submarines has made Wells, first cousin of the peace dove, predict war between France and England—war brothers a few minutes ago. THAT ought to warn us.

Lasker, of the Shipping Board, a business man of ferocious energy, chosen by the President, is working to keep for the country a national business fleet that cost billions, and in war might be worth ten times what is cost. Be thankful for that. They are going at it in the republican wrong way, not trusting the people to manage their own boats. But be thankful in these days for small mercies.

We CAN be safe, if we choose. We now own the song that England sang in the good old days, "We've got the men, we've got the ships, we've got the money, too." We actually have them. When England had men, ships AND THE MONEY, TOO, did she ask anybody to tell her what to do with them? Not exactly.

When Briand was a little boy he learned by heart Racine's line: "Ne vendez pas vos perdrix, vos lapins, etes sauge," meaning don't insist on destroying yourself, and you are safe.

Briand has not forgotten the line—he tells the sweet-voiced conferees: "We know that we can't rely on anyone else, therefore France will rely on herself."

A good many Americans need to learn that Racine line. The rows started at our conference, as they started at the Paris knitting party, will open some official eyes in America. Be thankful for that.

Lloyd George, it seems, is content after all. He will do the usual peace platitudinizing in public. Privately he will tell our people: "For God's sake, realize the world's condition and keep ready to do your share. We, in England, cannot talk to Japan as we'd like to. We do not dare. For she could do in our Indian empire what the clumsy Bolsheviks with their propaganda and the second class Gautama-Ghandi never could do.

"We know you Americans don't want war. Why should you? We of England have accumulated everything loose, including some things like Mesopotamia, that will take a century to digest. We're FULL and could not eat another bite, so we don't want war.

"But we'll both have it unless you in America are able to say, "I won't LET you fight."

Lloyd George, wisest, most powerful man in Europe, will talk like that in private, and for that the world may be thankful. He is working to make Russia and Germany living states, instead of slowly decaying dangers and in that he'll ask our help, and he ought to have it.

To keep Japan neutral and semi-British in its Indian attitude, to make the militaristic party in France, to which Briand does NOT belong, let go of Germany's throat, and pacify Canada and Australia, and the future real British empire, while coercing north Ireland to permit a settlement of the Irish question, is Lloyd George's job. Be thankful that he has the power to carry such a load. The world would be in worse shape without him.

There is one great force working for peace, human common sense. And the hope of the future is in the mothers of white men, who go on doing their work while the men talk a good deal of nonsense.

North of us, Canada has the same interests as we have, including

PELLETIER'S PLEA REFUSED

MOTION IS DENIED BY SUPREME COURT

Refuses "Writ of Prohibition" Which Would Have Stopped Trial on Original Charges

Justice Charles A. DeCourcy of the Supreme Judicial Court made the following important rulings today in the Suffolk County disbarment and removal cases:

1—He denied District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier's request for a "writ of prohibition," which, if granted, would have restrained the Supreme Court from trying Pelletier on the original charges preferred against him by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen.

2—He denied the petition of Attorney Daniel H. Coakley that the disbarment action against him be transferred for trial from the Supreme to the Superior Court.

Coakley, as soon as the ruling against him was announced, made a new motion, demanding a jury trial as a constitutional right.

EXCEPTION BY PELLETIER.

Arguments on his new motion will be heard a week from today, and he was given until a week from tomorrow to make final answer in court to the charges against him.

District Attorney Pelletier took an exception to the ruling against him, which exception was noted by Justice DeCourcy.

As he left the court a rumor spread among the many attorneys present that he would take his fight to the Federal Court, but his intentions along this line were not known.

Pelletier today, through his counsel, Assistant District Attorney Daniel M. Lyons, argued that that Massachusetts statute giving a majority of the full bench of the Supreme Court the right to remove a district attorney was unconstitutional.

He said he realized the unusual nature of his statement in asking one member of the Supreme Court to restrain the full bench.

Attorney-General Allen arose and

Missing Woman May Be Found by Posse

Husband Believes Young Wife May Have Gone Insane and Be Hiding Among Trees

MRS. LILY TONNESEN AND CHILD

She has been gone since the early part of November and her husband, who has asked aid in searching for her, believes that she may have lost her mind. She left home for Cape Cod and has not been seen, since.

New Witnesses in Arbuckle Case

FEAR 'WILD WOMAN' IS LOST WIFE

Forest Hills Mother, Gone Since Nov. 4, May Be Insane in Saugus Woods

That the "wild woman" whose shrieks in the night have led to a five days' hunt of the woods around Saugus, may be Mrs Lily Tonnesen, wife of Sigfald Tonnesen, of 177 Wachusett steet, Forest Hills, was the belief of her husband, today.

Mr. Tonnesen called on the Boston American and asked help in finding his wife. He said she was familiar with the territory around Saugus, having once lived there. He believes that his wife, of a nervous temperament, may have become temporarily insane.

Mrs. Tonnesen disappeared November 4, when she had planned to take a train for Yarmouthport, Cape Cod, to visit Mrs. D. C. Whelden. When she failed to arrive a search was undertaken, but no trace of her could be found.

The search of Saugus, which was begun by a posse of some twenty-five volunteers, was abandoned today but taken up at once by fifteen men.

"There's nothing to it," declared the members of Posse No. 1 when they returned tired and worn out this morning. They gave up the pursuit.

"We can't let it drop this way," responded others as the word was passed, and right then and there Posse No. 2 was organized.

And, carrying sticks and other weapons, posse No. 2 went forth bound to solve Saugus' greatest mystery.

Posse No. 1 gave up the hunt after five days, agreeing that the wild woman

DISCOVER BONES IN STOVE

Experts Identify Skulls and Teeth Among Ashes Found in Bluebeard's Home

By International News Service.

Versailles, Nov. 25.—Further proof that the fragments of flesh, bones and teeth found in Henri Landru's stove at his Gambais villa, were parts of women's bodies, was presented by anatomical experts when trial of the alleged "Bluebeard" was resumed in the Court of Assizes here today.

Professor Fauves, a dental expert, said the forty-seven fragments of teeth found in Landru's stove were unquestionably human and feminine. The prosecution's efforts to prove that Landru had burned the bodies of the ten women and a boy whom he is charged with having murdered, were greeted with renewed vigor on the basis of the expert testimony.

Dr. Anthonoy was emphatic in his statement that more than 200 fragments of bones found among ashes in Landru's stove were parts of human skulls.

Landru listened to this testimony with close attention and his only protest, as he realized the import of this damaging evidence, was a statement that the bones had been found during his absence from the Gambais cottage.

The shadow of the guillotine hovered nearer "Bluebeard" Landru today than at any moment of his trial. Dr. Paul, the famous morgue physician, credited with having performed more autopsies than any doctor in the world, swore, after a minute examination of charred bone fragments—the largest of which were less than an inch long—that they were not only human, but that they were fem-

Balfour at Home of Wilson, His Visit Causing Surprise

By International News Service

Washington, Nov. 25.—There was considerable surprise and speculative gossip in diplomatic circles today, when it became known that A. J. Balfour, head of the British delegation to the conference, was received by former President Wilson at his home.

The visit of the English statesman marks the first departure ex-President Wilson has made from his policy of not receiving foreign visitors here to attend the conference. Balfour, however, and the former President had a long and intimate chat.

In British quarters, the visit of Balfour was described today as being "purely social." Balfour's secretary said that the Briton had called to renew the acquaintances begun here in 1917. Balfour's visit caused speculation in French circles, where it was remarked that Mr. Wilson had not received either Marshal Foch or Premier Briand.

DEFENCE IS AIDED BY NURSE

To Testify Actress Suffered Chronic Internal Trouble; Warned Against Liquor

By Universal Service.

San Francisco, Nov. 25.—The star witness for the defence in the Arbuckle case will testify today. Her name is Irene Morgan, of Los Angeles.

Miss Morgan has been kept "under cover" as much as possible by defence counsel but it is understood the district attorney's office learned a few days ago that she would be a tremendous important cog in the defence machinery.

She is a nurse and masseuse, who lived with Virginia Rappe for seven months. She will tell the jury that the dead girl suffered with chronic internal trouble and that she was on a diet for the ailment.

Miss Morgan will say also that Miss Rappe had been warned against drinking liquor and will detail several occasions on which, having disregarded that warning, she became hysterical and tore off her clothes in the same fashion as the Labor Day party in the St. Francis.

SENSATIONAL STATEMENTS.

Submarines Necessary for Our Coast Defence

This is not surprising, but it is very surprising to see American newspapers like the New York Times and the New York Herald seconding the request and urging the Armament Conference to adopt the recommendation.

The submarine is the only naval weapon that England fears. It threatened her disintegration as a nation by threatening her control of the seas. For 140 years—ever since it was invented by David Bushnell, a Yale College freshman, in the Revolutionary War—Great Britain has tried to find some antidote for it or to destroy it. She tried to suppress the original invention. When that failed, she succeeded in bluffing the world into a disbelief in the submarine.

Baron Fisher of Kilverstone, First Lord of the British Admiralty, in his book published after the World War, writes:

"The most striking feature of the pre-war period was the astounding disregard and absolute ridicule cast upon the submarine on the high seas. Officers called them playthings, yet they sent 7,000,000 tons of British tonnage to the bottom of the sea with their still more valuable and irreplacable cargoes. When at manoeuvres before the war a young submarine commander had torpedoed a hostile Admiral three times—such is the story—and claimed the Admiral's ship as

PARLEY AGAINST FOREIGN COURTS IN CHINA

Washington, Nov. 25.—A decision was reached by the conference powers, meeting in secret session here today, that the system of extra-territoriality—referring to courts run by foreign powers—imposed on China by the treaty powers is wrong and should be abolished.

MAN, WIFE AND 2 CHILDREN STRANGELY POISONED

Albany, Nov. 25.—Abraham Chystel, his wife and two daughters, aged 10 and 14, were found in various parts of their home this morning, mysteriously and perhaps fatally poisoned. A bottle believed to have contained the unknown poison was found on the breakfast table.

AMERICAN DELEGATES NOW BEING GUARDED

Washington, Nov. 25.—Additional precautions are being taken to guard the statesmen attending the conference here from any harm. Because of the intense political and racial situations abroad, the foreign visitors have been heavily guarded since their arrival. Now the American delegates are also being accompanied by guards. Secretary of State Hughes was accompanied by a secret service operative this morning.

U. S. ARMY ON RHINE CUT TO AID GERMANS

Coblenz, Nov. 25.—The United States army has reduced the size of the army on the Rhine to ease the burdens on the German people, according to a statement issued today by General Allen, American commander here. "The Washington Armament Conference will not only prevent the probability of another horrible war, but, will meet the just demands of all friends of peace," General Allen's statement said.

The good people of Boston who open their homes to other people have a way of planning vacancies in the columns of The American, because it is a home newspaper and anybody with homey rooms to rent naturally advertises them here.

Look over the list today and then go out and talk the matter over with the owners of the homes advertised. If a special location is wanted in a hurry, a good way to facilitate matters is to print an ad of your own, saying where you wish to locate, and bring the ad to

NURSE OF VIRGINIA RAPPE WILL AID DEFENCE OF ARBUCKLE

TO TELL OF VICTIM'S ILLNESS

Morgan is prepared to give is said to be extremely sensational and will include allegations that certain interests have sought to prevent her testifying in Arbuckle's favor. She will also, it is believed, make charges of brutality against a male associate of Miss Rappe.

Unless the cross-examination of several experts prevents, Miss Morgan will face the jury late i nthe afternoon.

For support of Miss Morgan's statemnet, the defence is said to be relying on the testimony of three additional nurses.

One of these will come from Santa Anna and one from Los Angeles. The third will testify by deposition from Chicago and will say that Miss Rappe suffered from cystitis, as will the deposition of Dr. Rosenberg, of Chicago, who will declare he forbade Miss Rappe drinking any form of intoxicant.

Seven additional witnesses to the actual facts of the case will be called by the defence and three medical experts.

The question as to when Arbuckle will testify, if at all, has been settled, apparently. Unless some shift occurs in the defence plans Fatty will hoist his ponderous form to the witness stand tomorrow. And by an eleventh hour shift he will be handled while on the stand by Gavin McNab instead of by his personal attorney, Milton Cohen, as was originally planned.

Cohen has been detailed to marshaling an array of evidence along another line, and the task of steering Arbuckle through the pitfalls of direct and cross-examination will fall on the shoulders of the veteran San Francisco attorney.

The defence is banking to a considerable extent on the impression Arbuckle will make on the jury.

"He will win his own case," said one of them today. "There will be nothing - surprising, nothing sensational about his testimony. He will get on the stand and tell in his own way just what happened when he went into room 1219 and I am confident the jury will believe him. If he tells them the facts in the same way he tells them to us, they cannot but be convinced he is speaking the truth."

Arbuckle's statement, boiled down, will be as follows:

That he did not know Miss Rappe was in room 1219 until after he went in there to change his clothes in order to keep an engagement; that he locked the door and went to the bathroom, finding Miss Rappe stretched out on the floor of the bathroom deathly sick from drinking on an empty stomach. That he carried her to the bed and gave her some cold water which seemed to increase her nausea.

That he returned to the bathroom and when he came out found that Miss Rappe had fallen off the bed and had rolled between the two beds in the room. That he was not in the room alone with Miss Rappe more than ten minutes, that there was no attack, no immorality and that Miss Rappe was very sick all the time he was there.

Defence counsel declare that prosecution will be unable to shake the main star on cross-examination.

Crown Prince Who Has Been Made Regent of Japan

CROWN PRINCE HIROHITO.

HIROHITO MADE REGENT OF JAPAN

Tokio, Nov. 25 (By the Associated Press).—Crown Prince Hirohito has been designated Regent of Japan.

Designation of Crown Prince Hirohito of Japan followes reports which have been in circulation for about a year that Emperor Yoshihito was in bad physical condition. A dispatch to a Honolulu newspaper in May of last year reported he had suffered a mental and physical breakdown.

Early last month a rumor that he was dead circulated in Tokio, and the imperial household, in denying it at that time, stated he was so ill it was feared he could not recover.

There were signs that he had been suffering from a disease of the brain, the Imperial Household stated, and it was recalled that he was seriously ill during his infancy and that his malady had recurred after he had attained his majority.

Yoshihito became emperor upon the death of his father, the Emperor Mutsuhito, on July 30, 1912. The formal coronation, however, did not occur until Nov. 10, 1915. He was born at Kioto, August 31, 1879, and was married in 1900 to Princess Sadako, daughter of Prince Kujo.

There are three other children of the Imperial pair besides Prince Hirohito—Prince Yasuhito, born in 1902, Prince Nobuhito, born in 1905, and Prince Takahito, born in December, 1915.

CRITICAL STAGE IN MOVE FOR IRISH PEACE

Lloyd George and Premier Craig of Ulster Meet Again in London

London, Nov. 25 (by the Associated Press).—As Premier Craig of Ulster went into conference with Premier Lloyd George today, it was admitted officially that the Irish peace negotiations had reached a "grave and critical stage."

It is understood that a statement agreed upon between the two premiers has been drawn up.

This statement probably will be ready by the Ulster premier in the Parliament of Northern Ireland next Tuesday and issued simultaneously here.

A prominent member of the Sinn Fein said:

"The situation is too serious for talk," he said, "Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins and George Duffy (the Sinn Fein delegates) have gone to Dublin to take council with Mr. De Valera and the Dail Eireann cabinet and to receive instruction as to the attitude they are to adopt. They will return to London Saturday night to meet Mr. Lloyd George after he has received Sir James Craig's reply."

At today's interview Mr. Lloyd George was unable to give Ulster assurance that even if she agreed to his proposal the Sinn Fein would admit the point of allegiance to the King as the king of Ireland. Such admission has been refused by the Dail Eireann representatives, who are declared to view Ireland's position solely as that of an independent state, which, however, might make treaties with the other states of the British Empire, and even acknowledge the King as the president of a federation of free states.

This is nothing like the settlement plan the British government had in mind, and it appears that if the Sinn Fein maintains its attitude the negotiations must be broken off with the resumption of warfare an immediate possibility.

An effort is being made by the moderate element in Ireland to induce the Sinn Fein to modify its views, it is understood, but so far without effect.

Arthur Griffith's visit to Ireland is believed to be due solely to a desire to consult Eamon De Valera before the possible final breakup.

Today's conference, it was said last night, might be the last attempt of the British Premier to induce the Ulsterites to discuss alternative plans which would protect Ulster's interests and at the same time meet the demands of the Sinn Fein for an All-Ireland Parliament.

More Troops Sent to Keep Peace in Belfast

Police figures showed twenty-six persons had been killed in the disturbances.

ALIENS WANT TO RUN COURTS IN CHINA

Object to Giving Up Extra Territorial Rights and Complying With Wishes of Natives

Washington, Nov. 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The arms conference discussion of Far Eastern questions shifted today to the possibility of abridging the system of "extra territorial rights," under which the powers maintain their own judicial agencies in China for the trial of cases in which their respective nationals are involved.

China wants the extra-territorial privilege abolished altogether, although her delegates have indicated doubt whether the present judicial machinery of the Chinese government would make it possible to withdraw its foreign tribunals immediately.

All the other nations concerned have expressed hope that something can be done toward modifying the present system, but have evidenced in the main a feeling that nothing of a very sweeping character in that direction is warranted now.

ONLY ONE MEETING.

The session of the delegations, sitting as a committee of the whole to discuss the extra-territoriality problem, was the only meeting of the conference or its sub-divisions on today's program, the questions of land and naval armament having again gone into temporary eclipse while experts prepare their opinions as to details.

It was thought by some of the delegates that committee deliberations might also reach the subject of leases, bringing into the discussion the troublesome questions of Shantung and Manchuria.

NOT BEFORE PARLEY NOW.

The clash of opinion between the Chinese and some of the British spokesmen over the meaning of the four Root principles continued a subject of speculation in conversations among individual delegates.

The question of interpreting the Root principles has not yet come directly before the sessions of the conference, however, and may not be raised formally until the discussions reach a point requiring application of the principles to specific cases.

Secretary Hughes spent half an hour with President Harding today going over armament conference matters. The Secretary was unable to attend the regular Cabinet meeting later in the day, on account of a meeting of the conference committee on Far Eastern matters.

sine and belonging to at least three women.

For the first time in the trial the defence seemed subdued. M. Ciafferi, counsel for Landru, announcing that an explanation would be given during his speech to the jury at the end of the trial.

Despite the fact that the prosecution claims that the guilt of "Bluebeard" has been definitely established, there is no diminution of the sympathy of dozens of society women, who armed with opera glasses and lorgnettes, cluster around the prisoner during recesss.

SIGNS OVER 500 PHOTOS.

Each of them tenders the prisoner a photograph of himself, which they purchased, for his autograph. During this week he has signed more than 500 of his photos.

The experts, after demonstrating the rapidity with which flesh could be burned in Landru's stove, asserted that a box, found buried in the garden, contained portions of a skull, a finger and of feet, as well as several teeth, but they admitted that the blood stains found in the cellar might not have been human.

The president of the court grimly ordered that the box of bones be presented to Landru, to "see if he recognizes them."

The prisoner, grimacing in disgust, cried:

"Take them away, they are nothing to me."

The question now confronting the prosecution is to find proof of the manner of murder. Hilbert in presiding judge has admitted the theory of strangulation as the only hypothesis.

COURT REFUSES PELLETIER'S MOTION

said that this had also occurred to him. The attorney-general declared that the question of constitutional right of a Supreme Court to remove a district attorney had been settled at the trial of Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County.

Justice DeCourcy said that "the law seemed clear" and that the only proper time for the settlement of the constitutional questions involved was at the trial of Pelletier on the original charges.

Then he overruled the motion.

All this argument had to do with the original indictments of official misconduct against Pelletier, not with the new charges of contempt of court, made against the Suffolk district attorney by Attorney-General Allen.

On these new charges Pelletier has expressed himself as ready to go to trial at once, and it was considered likely a date for such trial might be set today.

Attorney Lyons, in his argument for the Suffolk County prosecutor, who sat near him and watched proceedings closely, said that the Supreme Court, in trying his client, would "constitute a court of limited peculiar and inferior jurisdiction," its members acting as individuals and doing the work the Legislature was meant to do.

Lyons confined himself almost strictly to the question of jurisdiction and did not deal with Pelletier's alleged right to a jury trial.

Coakley, in arguing his motion for a change of venue, maintained that the Supreme Court could not try him impartially after having heard the testimony in the Tufts trial, much of which will be used against him.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Adjournment of Congress makes possible carrying through without change the details of the Canadian sales tax trip arranged by the Hearst newspapers on the dates originally decided upon. Had the adjournment come a week later it would have been necessary to postpone the trip.

Two days will be spent in Montreal, two in Ottawa and the delegation will return to Washington via New York on Saturday, December 3.

The railroad people announced they had arranged definitely to attach a diner to the "Sales Tax Special" at the Grand Central depot. This diner will be open at 6:45 p. m. It will os possible, therefore, to serve dinner to about half the delegation before the train pulls out from New York at 7:45 p. m. The other half can be seated immediately thereafter.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE.

Arrangements have also been made to serve luncheon on the train from Washington to New York. The railroad people also informed the committee on arrangements that a diner will be attached to the train from Montreal to Ottawa. This makes the arrangements entirely complete.

The eighty members of Congress and others who will make up the delegation were delighted when adjournment was taken. It will enable forty of the delegates to make the trip to New York and witness the Army-Navy football game. They will spend Saturday night at New York hotels convenient to the Grand Central Station.

EXPERTS WILL EXPLAIN.

Information from Canada indicates that provision for the entertainment of the delegation as well as for its education in the operation of the sales tax has been made with the same painstaking regard for detail as the preliminary arrangements for the trip itself. The reception committee of the city of Montreal has arranged for a sightseeing tour, the route of which will be set when the delegation arrives.

Montreal city officials, the Montreal Board of Trade, and the Canadian Club are arranging to have tax experts explain the workings of the Canadian sales tax system.

J. Stanley Cooke, secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade, in a letter received by Representative Lester D. Volk, chairman of the committee on arrangements, says:

"I beg to acknowledge, on behalf of the president of the board, Senator Lorne C. Webster, the receipt of your telegraphic letter of the twelfth instant and of your letter of the fifteenth invisit of this most important congressional delegation was discussed by the council of this board, and the arrangements as outlined in my telegram to you of yesterday's date decided upon."

Colonel Robert Starke of the British Embassy in Washington was in conference with Chairman Volk and details of the entertainment of the delegation by the Canadian Club were discussed.

Science explains why we have had world-wide drought and scanty crops. Elaborate Entertainment Planned by Canadians

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 25.—A welcome to the Congressional delegation visiting Canada to study the sales tax has been prepared that will reflect the strong bond of friendship existing between the Dominion and the United States. Never has a larger delegation of the American Congress left Washington. Never have more elaborate arrangements been made by Canadian business men, financiers and lawmakers for entertainment of a visiting body.

Frankly, the Canadian public is glad the Congressional delegation is bound for Canada. In their opinion, continuance of friendship of the Dominion and the United States call for more intimate personal touch and better understanding of the economic problems by the law-makers of both governments.

Montreal, the 7rst point of contact, will be reached Monday, November 28. The Congressional delegation will then proceed to Ottawa, departing from this city for Washington December 3.

In this space of one week official and civic Canada will bend every effort toward making the stay and sales tax investigations of the American delegation both pleasant and profitable.

Entertainments of the party will begin with an official welcome of the delegation by Mayor Mederick Martin in Montreal next Monday and end with a farewell banquet to the visitors by the Ottawa Board of Trade to be given Thursday night, December 1, at the palatial Ottawa Country Club.

It is the earnest hope of Canadian business men that the visit of the American lawmakers will result in a better understanding of the difficulties arising as a result of proposed high tariff legislation in the United States.

In addition, it is believed that the benefits accruing to Canadian business through use of the sales tax method of revenue production will greatly benefit the neighboring country.

Canada is not only satisfied with her sales tax now operating throughout the Dominion, but it is convinced that its application to the United States, where economic conditions are vastly more favorable, will be of incalculable benefit.

WIFE OF GORDON DECLARES HIM INNOCENT

Husband Would Never Touch a Penny Not His Own, Says Cambridge Wife

However things may turn out in City Hall over in Cambridge when the last word is said, and the last defence uttered, there is one woman that keeps her faith high, and her love loyal, for a man—her husband—who, just now, is defending himself against grave charges.

That woman is Mrs. Herbert Gordon, wife of former Captain Gordon, of the Cambridge police.

Mrs. Gordon, staunch and loving Wife, does not need, nor never will need, verdict of acquittal, that her husband may be acquitted in her eyes. She knows, as she will tell you, in ringing accents of sincerity, what stuff her husband is made of.

Knowing this, no charge can ever hurt him in her love, though she grieves that any man she believes in so firmly should ever have to face charges so grave.

HOME IS MODEST.

In her pleasant home in Cambridge, at No. 8 Tenney street, Mrs. Gordon, with poise and safety dignity, told the story of Captain Gordon's financial affairs, as they are known to the woman closest to him—his wife.

The Gordon home, first of all, could never be associated with luxury and ill gotten gains. It is pleasant and neat and orderly. But it is modest as the pay of a police captain is modest.

Here and there are little touches of the home maker's skill, which mean not money so much as loving, housewifely contrivance. And presiding over all is Mrs. Gordon, the lady who has boundless faith in her husband.

"My husband," Mrs. Gordon will tell you, in a voice as low as reverent, "was never the man who would touch one penny not his own. He is of Scotch origin and you know what that means. It means upstanding honesty, fierce loyalty to home and family, prudence, thrift and economy in money matters. So it has been with Captain Gordon and with his family.

EDUCATED FOUR GIRLS.

"We have four daughters to whom we gave that best old education we could afford. Each of our girls, upon graduation, got excellent secretarial positions, and then came back home to mother. From the first week they worked. We later gave all of that to Father, in trust.

"People have often wondered about the management of our affairs. And we have never told that which did not concern the world, till now, when it is our duty to tell both it and he are so very deeply.

"I know how we saved, patiently, carefully, all the money—every last dollar, we later invested. Every last penny my girls ever earned, every loan made, and what we saved, we put away for some good investment, so that Father could decide what was best. We were one—my daughters, my husband and myself. And for a dollar to one of us belonged to us all; what hurt or helped one of us, hurt or helped us all.

"It was a very pretty picture, this middle class, little family group—father and mother made, as, with soft eyes gleaming, she told of the luxury of her heart. Then on her husband, once again.

PASS THROUGH SHADOW.

"When your dear husband is attacked bitterly, accused of things which you know he is innocent, you pass through the valley of the shadow of affliction, powerless to tell the world the faith that is positive in your own heart.

"If I could only make everybody know what a courageous, daring, splendid fighter this man of mine has been, in the way of his duty. If I could only make them see the hard lot of any policeman, and the very much harder lot of an officer on special duty, as my husband was, I would be quite a way toward making the world see the other side of the picture.

"It was Captain Gordon's hard duty to be assigned to a place where there is bad beats, where to do your duty is to incur the rankling hatred of those against whom in his orders to you.

"But there is another side to this picture, a pleasanter side to my husband's life, just apart from his duty upon which I love to linger. It is the picture of my husband as a friend. And he is the most loyal friend that ever lived.

DID MANY KINDNESSES.

"Many a time I have heard persons in need call on here and ask me to get them work, to do them some favor. And I have seen my husband take up the telephone, and keep working till the job was got for the man, the favor done. And, when done, Captain Gordon forgot all about it. He never thought of expecting anything in return for a kindness.

4 GET SIX MONTHS AFTER THEFT OF COAT

Samuel Miller, Harry Baer, Jacob Goldberg and Morris Freedman, all of the West End, were sentenced to six months in the House of Correction today when they were found guilty in the municipal court of the larceny of a fur overcoat valued at $115. They appealed and were held in $1,000 on the grand jury. Baer is alleged to have gone into the Grey Co. clothing store and engaged a clerk in conversation while the other three made off with the coat.

FIND INMATE OF POOR FARM COUNTING MONEY

Kennebunkport, Me., Nov. 25.—When representatives of the State Board of Charity and Correction visited the town poor farm here they found Henry Eldredge, one of the inmates, counting a big roll of bills. Investigation showed that Eldredge has been making $10 a week digging clams. He paid no board, but was supported by the town. When questioned, he said he was saving money to bury himself with.

DISCHARGE FOR SEAMAN SHOT ABOARD SHIP

Federal Court Fails to Find Evidence That Howell Attacked Captain With Knife

Frank Howell, a seaman on the schooner Lillian E. Kerr, who was shot by the captain, George F. Poppe, while at sea, was today discharged by Commissioner Wheeler in the Federal Court when he appeared on a charge of assault with a knife.

Commissioner Wheeler declared that there was no proof that Howell had a knife, and that if he did have one, it was because he was nearly scared to death by the threat of shooting made by Captain Poppe.

Howell, who has not yet recovered from the effects of the shooting, told the court that Captain Poppe had threatened to shoot him for wearing his overcoat while at the wheel.

Howell was later shot, according to his story, while he was stooping to get under the forward boom of the vessel.

The bullet entered his back on the right side.

Newspapermen attempted after Howell's discharge to get in touch with the British consul in an effort to get transportation for him back to his home in England.

BOY WHO KILLED CHUM SAYS HE WAS PUT OUT

Syracuse, Nov. 25.—Leaving home after he had accidentally shot and killed William Daley, thirteen years old, of Cambridge, Alphonse Edmund Fitzgerald, thirteen years old, also of Cambridge, surrendered himself to the police here and asked help.

Young Fitzgerald told Detective Sergt. Dantzler and Detective McMahon that last Saturday he found an old double-barrelled gun somewhere in the same and with three companions started target practice.

Daley was killed. Fitzgerald was taken to Cambridge police headquarters, questioned and later released.

When he returned home his father put him out, he says, and told him not to return.

He went to the home of Daniel Goodine and they decided to run away to Canada. Registering to the Fitzgerald home they took $50 from the older boy, and $4 in War Savings Stamps, and made their way to Syracuse.

Their money was spent, and yesterday Goodine became ill at a rooming house. Fitzgerald appealed to the police.

The local authorities have communicated with Cambridge for instructions.

"EPH" HARDING TRIES TO END LIFE WITH BULLET

Chicago, Nov. 25.—"Eph" Harding, alias of "Cousin Ebeneti" Harding said to kill himself today by sending a bullet through his head. He was rushed to the County Hospital, where he was said he could not live. Later he for the act remained a mystery.

"Eph" Harding for many years was associate of Monte Tennes, Chicago's "King of Gamblers." He was king of wide-open gambling in Chicago. More recently he came into the limelight because of his alleged part, who posed as a relative of President Harding, and who is now serving a term in leavenworth for impersonation of a Federal officer.

BAXTER DENIES HE IS OUT TO HELP CURLEY

Charles S. Baxter, candidate for the mayoralty, today issued a spirited denial to John R. Murphy's charge that Mr. Baxter, was in the race to help Curley. Mr. Baxter declared he did not seek any appointive office at the city government, and he pointed to his long service in the Republican party as proof that had appointive jobs been his ambition, he could have had them from his own party. He concluded that "When he was elected" he would not appoint a single Democrat to office, save on bipartisan commissions where the law required it.

HELD FOR SUIT LOTTEY SCHEME IN PORTLAND

Portland, Me., Nov. 25.—James J. Cunningham of Boston was arraigned for the second time in the Municipal Court today on a charge of conducting a lottery scheme in Boston two weeks ago. He was unable to furnish $1,000 bail and was remanded to jail. The State requested a continuance of the case until December 2 in order to run down several more alleged it have worked here with Cunningham in a suit lottery scheme that netted the promoters $25,000.

"55 CENTS TOO HIGH FOR STORAGE EGGS"

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Fifty-five cents a dozen for cold storage eggs retailed here and thirty-nine cents wholesale, the exchange quotation Wednesday, is too high, Russell J. Poole, city food expert, said today in announcing an investigation into the prices.

'Big Stick' Must Be Kept, Says Mrs. Dingley

By HAZEL CANNING.

"Don't—just don't let us give away our good big stick."

Mrs. Edward Nelson Dingley, daughter-in-law of the late Nelson Dingley, great Congressman from Maine, framer of the Dingley Tariff, makes this plea as her particular woman's comment upon the present disarmament talk of the world's history. Nowhere in the world, perhaps, is there a woman keener to warn her nation against a grave, political error. Mrs. Dingley, at her home in South Braintree, so made her plea:

"Disarmament is a fine thing, viewed through childish eyes of a romancing visionary. Viewed through eyes of experienced men and women who have studied world history and are not altogether devoid of knowledge of human nature, disarmament, such as our sublime spokesmen at Washington are advocating, is nothing short of suicidal."

So defined Mrs. Dingley. In the first place. Then she explained what in the old Latin grammer used to be called "attendant circumstances." The attendant circumstances in her case were the reasons she had for making up her mind. As she mentioned them herself:

BELIEVES IN PREPAREDNESS

"My husband, for many years of his life, has been newspapers publisher, Republican national committeeworker and tariff expert. My father-in-law, Congressman Dingley, lived in the midst of world problems. I, myself, have visited Europe quite fairly recently, and from this accrued experience I know that Europe is not fit to trust by us in time of our absolute defenselessness.

"Disarmament talk is the vogue nowadays. And to talk against disarmament is hardly to be in fashion. Yet I do feel, as a patriotic American woman, daughter of the American Revolution and sister of outstanding young sons, that it is my duty to be unpopular, for the sake of casting what influence I can on the side of my country's keeping a good big stick handy for any sort of international fracas likely—too sadly likely—to develop."

So spoke a very sincere little woman. Then, quite by chance, it develops that Mrs. Dingley does not let her charity to civilian and good works upon her preachments alone. Mrs. Dingley, for some years that it would be easy to reckon, has been a generous contributor to the Herbert Hoover Fund of the Boston American, a contributor in the name of her beloved eldest daughter, who died a few years ago at Harvard. And this year Mrs. Dingley has set a style, for any when such observances are growing less considered, of bringing to her home, for week-end and Thanksgiving holidays, soldiers wounded and in hospitals.

HOSTESS TO HEROES.

This Thanksgiving she entertained three boys from the Chelsea hospital.

"The war is done, but our duty to the soldiers is by no means done with the war," she remarked. "I enjoyed having these youngsters, ever so much. But, even more, if I only could do it, I would have enjoyed go ing out into the streets and gathering up the boys who went to war and were discharged upon a selfish world of unemployment. It made me feel pretty sad, and pretty helpless, to think of the blessed boys who fought so battle, overseas, and are now fighting alone, unchered, a battle of their own, without a job, this Thanksgiving season. I wish somebody, right away, would start a search for such boys. They are hard to find. They are, most always, too sensitive to come forward and say frankly that they are in need and jobless, but these are, above all, the ones to whom we owe the greatest debt.

PRAYS FOR WARLESS DAYS.

So speaks one enthusiastic woman, and, with earnestness, she finishes:

"Let's hope for peace on earth and good will everywhere. Let's pray, with sincerity, that the day may come when we can put by all our weapons of defence. But let us just the same keep what we need that, in time of great trouble, our defencelessness may not rise up and mock us, in the useless deaths of our very precious sons."

ACTRESS TIRES OF CAVE MAN IN HOME

New York, Nov. 25.—Wooing, as in William Shakespeare's famous comedy of "Treat 'Em Rough, Kill 'Em Rough," sometimes known as "The Taming of the Shrew," went very well with Marie Goff on the stage. But off the stage 'twas different.

For dainty Marie was quite captivated by the strenuous third degree of John Cromwell, as he played opposite her on the stage in "At 9:45." She was so captivated by the handsome stage detective chief that she slipped away one day and played another engagement before a parson.

80-YEAR-OLD MAN WHO BEAT BOY ON PROBATION

Thomas McQuade, eighty years old of Stanford street, West End ,was found guilty in municipal court today of assault with his cane on seven-year-old John Deluca of No. 89 Revere street. He was placed on probation. He told the court that the children of the neighborhood frequently annoyed him by pulling his coattails and he was obliged to protect himself with his cane.

DRINKS POISON, THEN FIGHTS RESCUER

Sailor, After Quarrel With Wife, Tries Suicide and Is on Danger List

Milton Miller, a young sailor, swallowed a dose of arsenate of lead, following a Thanksgiving dinner quarrel with his pretty young Somerville wife, and then fought desperately with a neighbor who knocked the vial from his hands.

Miller then collapsed and was rushed to the Somerville Hospital where physicians worked over him with a stomach pump and placed his name upon the danger list.

WRITES FAREWELL NOTE.

Immediately preceding his attempt to end his life, Miller wrote a farewell note to his mother, Mrs. Thomas J. Miller of No. 309 South Fourth street, Memphis, Tenn.

The sailor, who is but twenty-one and a marine only four months, secured leave of absence from his ship, stationed at the submarine base, New London, Ct., to spend Thanksgiving with his pretty bride, Mary Bullio Miller, at the home of her parents, No. 22 Alpine street, Somerville.

They were apparently happy, relatives and friends say, until they disagreed over something following dinner, and shortly after engaged in a violent quarrel.

Leaving the dining room, Miller went upstairs to the bedroom, where he hurriedly penned a farewell note to his mother, and then swallowed the dose of poison. Aroused by his groans, the Bullio family were horrified to see Miller lying upon the bed apparently in great pain, and the empty vial clutched in his hand.

SECOND ATTEMPT FOILED.

Neighbors were called and J. Edward Donegan, No. 29 Alpine street, rushed up the stairs just in time to see Miller about to swallow another dose.

Leaping from the door to the bed, Donegan dashed the vial from Miller's hands, and physicians say undoubtedly prevented Miller's attempt to end his life being immediately successful.

Half crazed by pain and angered by his self-action in preventing his taking the second dose, Miller leaped from the bed and struck Donegan a smashing blow on the jaw. He then collapsed.

In his farewell note, Miller said:

"Dear Mother: This is my last letter. My heart is broken. The end will come before this.

"If I have not been an ideal son, please forgive me. Oh mother, pray slipped away one day and played another engagement before a parson.

Now she's sorry and with her change in affections sue is bringing suit for divorce.

"Your son,

a prize, all the change he got for his claim was a signal from the Admiral, "You be damned!" In a memorandum which I had printed and circulated in January, 1914, several months before the war, these words may be found in large capital letters: "The submarine is the coming type of war vessel for sea fighting."

England's naval policy never changes. It is like her diplomacy, which always makes alliances with other Powers against the nation which at the moment she regards as her greatest competitor.

When our own Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat, made an improved American submarine during the Napoleonic wars he offered it to William Pitt, then Prime Minister of England. Fulton's boat was modeled after that of Bushnell, the Yale graduate, made thirty-five years earlier. It was propelled by hand by one navigator within; in those days there were, of course, no electrical power, no motors and no steam engines.

Pitt had the intellect and the imagination to see the importance of the invention. He sent Fulton to Lord St. Vincent, then First Lord of the Admiralty, with a letter of introduction. That bluff old British sailor exploded with rage as soon as Fulton showed his plans. The British Admiralty Chief's remarks indicate that he immediately grasped the significance of Fulton's boat. He exclaimed:

"What a fool Pitt is! He asks me to encourage a kind of warfare which is useless to those who are masters of the sea and which, if it succeeds, WILL EVEN DEPRIVE THEM OF THEIR MASTERY."

Lord St. Vincent had no intention of helping Fulton develop his submarine. He tried instead to suppress it—to prevent any enemy from using it. Great Britain finally offered Fulton a large sum of money for his invention. In a letter to Lord Granville, which is still extant, Fulton indignantly rejected this proposal: "Not for twenty thousand a year," he wrote, "would I do what you suggest."

The submarine has no equal or substitute as a weapon for coast defence for the United States. We could build and keep in a state of high efficiency a fleet of a thousand submarines and never feel the cost.

And with even one thousand submarines we could guard our two coasts against any possible attack. We could defeat any nation making a war of aggression against us by the simple process of destroying their merchant marines and reducing their home population to helplessness through lack of food and materials.

Ourselves immune to blockade because our vast land produces everything we should need to keep on making war indefinitely, all the submarines in the world could not reduce us to helplessness or even make serious attacks upon our thousands of miles of sea coasts. And, on the other hand, with the submarine navy we could easily build and keep in commission we could and would strike fatal blows at any naval power attacking us.

We ought to keep our airplane and submarine and chemical war weapons in a better condition for offensive and defensive warfare than those of any other TWO nations, because no ONE nation is likely ever to attack us again.

We ought to get out of our heads this dangerous nonsense, implanted by foreign propaganda, which makes us look upon submarine warfare and chemical warfare as peculiarly horrible things.

As a matter of fact, with all the thousands of vessels sunk by submarines, the total of lives lost during the whole war by submarine activities was less than 10,000—about the DAILY average on land for months put together. And there were more civilian men, women, children and babies killed in single weeks by air raids and by naval blockades than were killed by submarines in the four years of the war.

We shall commit a disastrous mistake, for which we shall have to pay a terrible price some day, if we permit any foreign propaganda to lead us to outlaw these powerful and splendidly effective AMERICAN naval weapons in our own navy.

This is not the opinion of the Hearst papers also.

Ask ANY American naval officer what he ought to do about submarines.

The better officer he is, the more emphatically will he tell you that the Hearst papers are absolutely right.

Is it not strange in these circumstances that leading American newspapers should be so blind as to join in a foreign propaganda against submarines? It is as strange as the fact which Clement Shorter, the eminent British editor, after his tour of the United States, recently commented on in the Westminster Gazette. He said that two New York newspapers which he named—the Times and the Tribune—were more English than any English newspaper.

"Diapepsin" for Bad Stomach, Indigestion

Take "Pape's Diapepsin" now! In five minutes your stomach feels fine. Don't bother what upset your stomach or which portion of the food did the damage. If your stomach is sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps, head dizzy and aches; you belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear. If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only sixty cents for a large case at drug stores—Advertisement.

TEACHERS GO TO COURT TO GET MORE PAY

Proceed Against Cambridge City Officials to Compel Them to Expend $65,000

In a petition for a writ of mandamus filed with the Supreme Judicial Court, East Cambridge, today, a special committee of Cambridge public school teachers seeks to force the expenditure of approximately $65,000 of an unexpended balance from appropriations made by the School Board for the purpose of increasing the pay of instructors and other employes, under the special legislative act of 1919.

The committee is composed of Florence Hunter, Mary F. Leland, Ruth H. Elliott, Helen M. Hicks, Margaret I. Feeney, Edward F. McAuliffe, Annie H. Shurtleff, Katherine M. Greene, Francis J. O'Hara, John W. Weeks and John H. Graham, all teachers.

The petition is aimed at Mayor Quinn, members of the school board, City Treasurer Lehan and City Auditor Thurston, and other city officials.

The petition, which is returnable next Friday morning before the Supreme Judicial Court in Boston, states that under the provisions of the special act of 1919, which authorized the increase of the pay of teachers and other school employes, the Cambridge school board has appropriated at various times sums amounting to approximately $650,641.

Of this sum a total of $65,058.11 remains unexpended for the purpose for which it was appropriated, and the teachers ask that the courts instruct the city officials to proceed at once to the payment of the money in the form of salary increases.

Cheer Up! In 153 Years We'll All Live to the Age of 100

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 25.—One hundred and fifty-three years from now, or in the year 2074, health conditions in this country will be so good that the average person will live 100 years—according to several Red Cross statistical experts.

These statisticians based their 100 years idea on what they called past passing out performance. For instance, in 1910 in New York persons died at an average age of 25 and in 1920 they shuffled along into the next world at an average age of 29.

This upward trend of life, they claimed, has been in evidence for many years.

GIRLS BATTLE FOUR MEN IN AUTOMOBILE

Medford Young Women Escape After Flight Through Outskirts of Lincoln

An early morning battle for their honor and lives with four young men who attacked them in an auto on the outskirts of Lincoln, their escape and flight as they ran screaming through the night and finally fell exhausted on the doorsteps of a caretaker's house, where an attempt was again made to abduct them by the men who had overtaken them, was told today by two pretty Medford girls.

The girls, Florence Tessen, nineteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Margaret Tessen, of No. 342 Salem street, and twenty-year-old Segrid Olson, of Sheridan avenue, were confined to their homes several days following their experience.

The Medford and Lincoln police have verified their stories, it is said, and the girls are now awaiting action from Police Chief John Kelliher of Lincoln, to whom the girls gave the names of two of the men, said to live in Watertown. The other two they did not know.

ATTENDED DANCE.

According to the story, the girls attended a dance at Nutting's-on-the-Charles, Waltham, where they were taken via auto by two other Medford young men, whom they knew.

Following the dance two Watertown youths, whom they also knew, said they would take them home in their machine. Two strangers joined the party, and they started out.

After reading for some time and seeing no familiar landmarks, the girls became alarmed and asked the men where they were going. One is declared to have laughed and said "we're on our way." Both girls screamed, but the men refused to stop the car, they say.

After driving a while longer, the car was stopped, and the driver said he was out of gasoline. The two men in the front seat got out, came to the rear where the girls were with the other two men, and there in the darkness the girls declare they were attacked.

FLED SCREAMING.

Both scratched and kicked their alleged assailants, the girls said, finally broke away from their grasp and fled screaming over fields. A faint light beckoned to them in the darkness, they said, and following this dim beacon they stumbled on the steps of the cottage of the caretaker of the Walker Story estate. The caretaker, his wife and Marion Viets, a public health nurse, rushed to the door.

Meantime the four men had pursued them in their car, and arrived just as the girls were being taken inside. Again the men tried to take them away, declaring they meant no harm, and were finally driven off by the people in the house.

BAXTER APPEALS FOR STRAIGHT G. O. P. SUPPORT

Charles S. Baxter, speaking before four social gatherings in different parts of the city, declared that the election of any of his opponents will be tantamount to state-wide as a Democratic victory in a city which registered itself overwhelmingly in favor of the Republican party at the last presidential election, and appealed to every Republican to save the party here.

He spoke at the Valley Club dance in Hibernian Hall, the Chandler Associates' dance in Odd Fellows' Hall and before the Shamrock Club in International Hall and the Boston & Maine Freight Handlers' Union dance in Boughan Hall, Charlestown.

"The fact that registration shows today the division of Republicans and Democrats is about 50-50, demonstrates that the Republicans have their opportunity to place one of their party in the Mayor's chair. I know that thousands of Republicans realize this fact. A hopeless minority have followed a few leaders and have become subservient to the Democratic party."

PROTEST QUESTIONING PUPILS AS TO CHURCH

Westfield, Nov. 25.—Whether or not school teachers have the right to inquire from their pupils as to what church they attend will be decided by the school committee. Pupils of the Fort Meadow School, in some instances, have told their parents that their teachers have asked them what church they attended. As a result representative societies from St. Joseph's Polish Catholic Church have appointed a committee to confer with the school committee relative to the matter.

What Doctors do for their own sore throats

"I want to congratulate you, Doctor, on the great success I hear you are having with your throat cases. I myself have attacks of inflamed throat every winter, can't seem to get rid of them. Wish you would take a look at mine and tell me what to do.

"I guess, Doctor, I will have to introduce you to Formamint—a real good throat antiseptic with which you will keep the soft tissues in an almost constant antiseptic bath, because you will find Formamint pleasant and convenient enough to use frequently. I find that the average patient will readily dissolve Formamint in his mouth every hour or so, and you know how hard it is to get them to use gargles or sprays consistently, even two or three times a day, especially children.

"Formamint tablets certainly relieve sore throats and are heading off a lot of tonsillitis for me, but I am even more interested in their prophylactic power, and so I am advising my patients to use them freely during the throat and influenza season to prevent infection."

Recommended by throat specialists, physicians, dentists and druggists.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow long, strong and luxuriant. One application of Danderine makes thin, lifeless, colorless hair look youthfully bright, lustrous, and just twice as abundant.

BRIAND SCORES ARGUMENT TO SPLIT ALLIES

No Time For It, He Declares in Farewell as He Sails for Homeland

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 25—Disclaiming any wish to reply to the address in London yesterday of Lord Curzon, the British Foreign Minister, urging France not to pursue an "isolated and individualistic" policy, Premier Briand of France declared before sailing for home today that this was no time for argument between "friends and allies."

He asserted that, despite the "exceptional" situation of France in Europe, the French government was proposing to go further in limitation of armaments, both on land and sea, than any other nation.

"I do not wish to reply to Lord Curzon's statement for the reason that I haven't the official text," said M. Briand through an interpreter. "I do not quite see, however, what interest there can be for friends and allies to argue with one another at the very moment when they are trying at Washington to assure the peace of the world.

"It is primarily between them that peace ought to exist.

"As regards disarmament, France will have gone as far along this road as any other country, without exception, in effect, on land, in spite of the dangers which she undergoes, she has already spontaneously reduced her 'Metropolitan army' by a third.

"It is much more than the other nations will do as regards navies, since the naval reduction envisaged does not exceed 40 per cent.

"And this! That France, which has 60,000,000 subjects in colonies whose coasts are on three seas and which consequently need a navy, has seen her fleet of capital ships reduced by the effects of the war from three squadrons to a single squadron. She is prepared on this ground to realize any accord with her friends and her allies for the same proportional reductions.

"Our English friends ought to recognize the fact that the German fleet is at the bottom of the sea and that consequently it is no longer a menace either for England or for us. But the 7,000,000 men of the German army are still there, very much alive and available. This is a fact that France must realize and consider.

"In conclusion, I have observed with the greatest satisfaction that it is sufficient for me to loyally explain the situation to the American people in order to be understood by the whole world. This permits me to leave for France with a tranquil spirit and a peaceful heart."

LONGFELLOW'S LAST SON IS DEAD AT 76

Following a protracted period of ill-health, Ernest Wadsworth Longfellow, the second and last surviving son of the poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, died at the Hotel Touraine, where he has made his home for some time past. He was seventy-six years old the day before his death.

Mr. Longfellow was born in 1845. He was graduated from Harvard in 1865. He studied art in Paris under Hebert Bouguereau and Couture. In 1868 he married Harriet Spelman of Cambridge and for a short time made his home in Cambridge. For some years he maintained a home at Magnolia, but passed most of his time abroad.

He was well known in the field of art and among his best paintings are "Misty Morning," "The Choice of Youth," "Italian Pifferari," "Morning on the Aegean," "The Matterhorn," "Evening on the Nile," "First Love" and "Portrait of H. W. Longfellow."

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 o'clock from the old Longfellow home at No. 105 Brattle street, Cambridge. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian Association and son of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard.

CURLEY LAMENTS LOSS OF SHIPPING BUSINESS

Deploring the deterioration of Boston as an export city under "the reformers," former Mayor Curley, addressing a noon-day rally at the Fish Pier, South Boston, today, promised to approve expenditure of such money as experts might recommend to bring the city back from eleventh place, as he said, to its old position as seventh.

He berated the Peters administration for the big per capita cost of government, $56.05, the highest, he said, of any large city in America, as against $18.89 in Baltimore. And he scored the tax rate.

He then promised to approve the spending of money for the reclamation project at Hird Island Flats and Governors Island, and the Belt Line Railroad, if approved by experts.

3 BUILDINGS ENTERED BY SOMERVILLE BOYS

Three breaks, apparently the work of boy vandals rather than thieves, were reported in Somerville today. Western Junior High School on Holland street, West Somerville, was entered by removing a screen window. The plate glass in Principal Arthur Dow's office was smashed, together with other useless destruction of probably. The fish store of John Nangle on Somerville avenue and the store of Augustus Boudreau of Bow street were also entered. Several articles were taken and there was some destruction of property.

THRONG RUSHES FOR AID FROM DR. LORENZ

Famous Austrian Bloodless Surgeon Besieged by Cripples in Furs and Rags

By International News Service.

COURT HELD IN SOMERVILLE RESIDENCE

Husband Sentenced to Eight Months Following Wife's Story of Beating

A strange court scene was staged today in the living room of the house at No. 16 Nashua street, Somerville, with Emile Le Cours, owner of the house, in the role of defendant; Judge Malcolm E. Sturtevant presiding, and Marie Le Cours, the defendant's assaulting wife, giving her testimony of alleged assault and battery from a lounge on which she sat propped up with pillows.

Following the usual trial, Judge Sturtevant took Le Cours back to Somerville Court, found him guilty and sentenced him to eight months in the House of Correction. Le Cours, who is forty-five years old, appealed from the sentence. He was held in $2,000 for the Grand Jury.

In passing on the case Judge Sturtevant said it was a grave one and a more serious charge than assault and battery would have been justified.

The alleged assault was committed November 2, and the case has been continued several times. When it was called today it was again stated that Mrs. Le Cours was unable to be in court.

Judge Sturtevant called for his automobile, and accompanied by the defendant, Clerk of Court Bradley and several police officers, drove to the Le Cours home.

The wife testified that her husband had pushed her downstairs and had beaten her over the head with the butt of a gun. She said she was not able to leave the house and did not know when she would be.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Rummage Sale Will Aid Baby Hygiene Work

By BETTY ALDEN

KING CHARITY is a very tyrannical ruler these days. He manages to keep any number of society folk in busy attendance, as his mighty sceptre sweeps the length and breadth of his dominions. But, like the Roman sovereigns of olden times, he is a "benevolent despot"; he has but to say the word, and presto! some good deed is done.

One of the most worthy charity projects which prominent women of the smart set have taken up is the rummage sale which will be held in Horticultural Hall on December 14 and 15 in aid of the Baby Hygiene Association. The affair promises to be unusually fruitful, due to the particular interest which an ever-busy group of women are taking in it. Already have many excellent pieces of furniture and china been promised, and it is hoped that before the fourteenth of the month many others will seize the opportunity of helping countless little babies to live.

I note that the committee in charge of this event is headed by Mrs. Carl Keller of Mt. Vernon street, which brings to mind the large rummage sale held recently, also in Horticultural Hall, this time for the benefit of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy. At this same Mrs. Keller was an ardent worker as one of the "saleslad[ies]" at the book counter. Among Mrs. Keller's co-workers were Mrs. Frederic Tudor and Miss Marforie Thayer. The latter is also working for next month's sale, having charge of the luncheon counter.

Miss Mary Amory of Beacon street has charge of the clothes table; Mrs. Harvey Bundy of Marlboro street is looking after the publicity; Mrs. Howard Coonley of Milton, the babies and children's table; Mrs. Reginald Hull and Mrs. Charles E. Inches, china and bric-a-brac; Mrs. Richard Harte, furniture. Mrs. Morton P. Prince, a prominent worker for the association, will take orders for Christmas greens and will have charge of the lace table; Mrs. Richard P. Strong, the book table; Mrs. Richard Smith, toys; Mrs. Helen D. Taft, men's clothing; Mrs. William Reggio, baskets and bags; Mrs. Wendell, shoes. The other members of the committee are Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley, Mrs. Samuel Cabot, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. Leslie Liggett, Mrs. William Wood, Jr., and Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue.

Apropos of charity functions, there seem to be quite a number of persons who have the idea that a good many charitable organizations are maintained solely to serve as a means of entertainment for the socially-elect. This idea, while it is an erroneous one, is pardonable in some respects, for the public is too apt to read of the work being carried on by these helpful societies via the society column, rather than the news sections.

As a matter of fact, not a few of the matrons taking part in next month's rummage sale have done splendid work for the Baby Hygiene Association. The chief aim of the society is to curb the immediate death rate among infants and to teach parents how to rear healthy babies. The board of trustees for the Baby Hygiene Association is composed almost entirely of persons well known in the social or medical world. Mrs. Morton P. Prince, for instance, besides being a member of the board, has charge of all matters that pertain to the welfare of the nurses. She herself worked out a budget system for them that resulted in a general increase of salaries to meet the increased cost of living. Mrs. Prince is also responsible for the standard uniform worn by all Baby Hygiene nurses and dietitians—so one may see that doing charity work consists not merely in standing behind a counter at a bazaar o. rummage sale and "looking pretty." And Mrs. Prince is but one of the many women doing praiseworth work in aid of the association.

Important among the "bud" festivities of the near future is the dance which Mrs. Charles Goddard of No. 147 Bay State road will give on the 10th of next month in honor of Miss Ellen Whitney and Miss Barbara Reynolds in her home. Ellen, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellerton P. Whitney of Milton, was introduced about a month ago at a dance given by her parents, while Barbara Reynolds was introduced in the last Summer or early Fall at a tea. Both girls, of course, are "provisional" members of the Junior League.

A recent debutante event was the dance which Mr. and Mrs. F. Murrai Forbes gave at their home in Wellesley in honor of Miss Helen Scott of "Homewood," Wellesley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Scott. The latter entertained at a large dinner in their home preceding the dance. The following evening Miss Scott was the guest of honor at Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Jr.'s, dinner at the Copley-Plaza, which preceded the Harvest Festival ball held at the Copley-Plaza under the auspices of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, and for which Mrs. Fearing was one of the patronesses.

MRS. RICHARD C. DIXEY and her sister, Miss Mary Aspinwall Tappan of Beacon street, have closed "Pangiewood," their country estate in Lenox, and have returned to town for the Winter.

The Misses Ellen and Ida Mason of No. 1 Walnut street expect to remain at their Summer home on Rhode Island avenue in Newport, until after the holiday season, when they will return to Boston for the remainder of the Winter.

The wedding of Miss Eleanor Lee Higginson to George H. Lyman, Jr., of Commonwealth avenue takes place at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in St. Paul's Cathedral. Miss Higginson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson of No. 274 Beacon Street, is a member of the 1917 Sewing Circle and the Vincent Club.

Miss Helen Bennett of Commonwealth avenue was one of the bridesmaids at the marriage of Miss Eleanor Carroll Daingerfield Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Carter of Baltimore, to Morgan Edward La Montagne of New York. The wedding, which was solemnized in the Cathedral in Baltimore, was one of the most fashionable nuptial events of the South, and society from New York and the Hub, as well as several other large cities, was well represented among the large number of wedding guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant Jessie Ross Greenough, were recently married at Columbus, S. C., are to make their home in Winnsboro, S. C. Mr. Grant is the youngest of the four sons of Judge and Mrs. Robert Grant of Bay State road, Boston.

DIRECTORS ACT UPON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE DECREE

Meet in Office of Ex-Governor Bates to Decide on Course to Be Followed

Attorneys for the Christian Science board of directors, upheld as supreme authority in the church by recent decrees of the Supreme Court, met today in the office of former Governor John L. Bates to decide on their course under the court ruling.

It was announced by Judge Clifford P. Smith, chairman of the Christian Science committee on publication, that one of the first and most far-reaching results of the decision would be a complete reorganization of the editorial staffs of all the Christian Science publications.

He emphatically denied the report the Christian Science Monitor would be discontinued, although he admitted that there would be a change in management.

No definite action can be taken before the decree is entered by the court dissolving the injunction obtained by the board of trustees. This, he thought, probably would be next Tuesday.

"The directors will attempt and hope to be able to accomplish the reorganization with the least possible friction," said Judge Smith. "They trust, of course, the the trustees will have the courtesy to resign."

Herbert W. Eustace, chairman of the board of trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, declined to reveal what the next move of himself and his fellow trustees would be.

PEACE OR WAR?

Studies at the Washington Conference No. 13

THE LARGER QUESTION BEHIND THE CONFERENCE

The Washington conference, after its tremendous opening, seems now to be running into slack water. It has had its three great days, in which Secretary Hughes and Mr. Balfour and M. Briand have respectively played the leading parts. The broad lines of a possible naval reduction and of a possible Chinese and Pacific settlement are shaping themselves in men's minds.

M. Briand has spoken and now departs. France will not disarm until she has a binding treaty which her former allies are not yet prepared to give her. She ignores the assurances of her proven allies and the experiences of the Great War. She goes in fear of desolate Russia and bankrupt Germany and she is "unsailable on three counts."

To she retains her great armies, and especially her "colonial" army. M. Briand's departure has something of the effect of France shaking the dust from her feet and departing from the Conference. But France cannot step out of her share in the leadership of peace in this fashion. Peace has not finished with the Conference yet. She will sneak now at Washington with a voice perhaps less romantically impressive, but more practically helpful. She has explained the terrors of her position and the assembled delegates have said: "There, there," to her politely and soothingly as possible. But nobody really believes in the terrors of her position.

Can't Go Far Without Germans and Russians

Mr. Hughes is a man of great tenacity of purpose and his chief reply to M. Briand's speech is to keep military disarmament upon the agenda. A third committee of five powers has been added to the two already in existence to deal with land disarmament. It is doubtful if it can get very far unless it can bring in German and Russian representatives in reply to the military charges of M. Briand.

With the formation of this third committee, the Washington Conference would seem to have got as much before it as it is likely to handle. The Hughes impetus has done its work and done its work well. The Conference has followed his rigorous lead almost too rigorously. It has cut off a manageable part of the vast problem of world peace and menta well on the way to manage it. That is exemplary—if limited. To manage a sample is to go some way towards demonstrating that the whole is manageable.

A war on the Pacific has been averted, I think, at least for some years. But the more general problem of world peace as one whole, the problem of ending war for good, still remains untouched and it is well to bear in mind that that is so.

It is impossible not to contrast this phase in the life of the Washington conference with the great preparations of the opening days, when President Harding was kindling at Arlington and in the Continental Building of making an end of differences and with that of defensive—war forever in the world.

Impossible to Ignore Shrinkage of Aim

It is impossible to ignore this shrinkage of aim and to refrain from measuring the vast omissions. That preclude, one perceives, was the prelude to something greater than this present conference, and more than this conference can ever extend from it. The haggling and adjustment that is now going on in the committees of observers on naval limitation and in the committee of nine powers on the Pacific Islands, I will not attempt to follow.

It is a matter for the experts and diplomatists of the public. Concerned not with the methods of the wrangle, but with the general purport and practical outcome. We in the general public are incapable of judging upon the merits of battle cruisers and the possible limits to the size of submarines. Our concern is to see such things grow rarer and rarer until they disappear.

I will not apologize, therefore, for going outside the Conference chamber for the matter of my next few papers. I will go back from Mr. Secretary Hughes and his proposals and their consequences to President Harding and to the great expectations with which the Conference assembled.

Those expectations looked not merely to an arrest of international competition on the Pacific and to giving threatened China a breathing time to bring itself up to modern conditions, but they looked frankly toward the establishment of a world peace. But so far as Europe goes, where, as M. Briand so nobly reminded us, the nations are locked together in a state of extreme danger, the Conference has done no handling.

It is quite possible to believe that it will do more. It is doubtful if the peace of Europe can ever be dealt with effectually in Washington. The troubles of the European continent are no old, intricate story and I believe the attitude ascribed here to Mr. Hughes can center and west, the attitude of "let Europe solve its own international problems and not bother us with them" is a thoroughly sound and wise one.

Up to Europe to Simplify Itself

America has neither the time and attention to spare, nor the particular understandings needed, to grasp the tangled difficulties of Europe. Such initiatives as those of President Wilson, about Fiume and Flume settle nothing and leave rankling sores. It is up to Europe to clear up and simplify itself before it comes into the world arena with America.

It is just within the range of possibility, therefore, that some sort of European conference may arise out of the Washington gathering. Such a conference is becoming necessary. The divergence in spirit and aim of France and Britain that Washington has brought out is not a divergence to be smoothed over. Better it should flare now than a decade later. I have done my own small best to exacerbate it, because I believe that a bright quarrel and some plain speaking may clear the air for a better understanding.

Europe needs ventilation. When France, Britain, Italy and Germany meet together to discuss their common interests through their impossible entanglements, and get rid of their mutual suspicions and precautions, with the frankness of this Washington gathering, with an open end for a discussion and as ample a publicity as practicable, European affairs will be on the mend.

But there is another issue which America cannot keep out of as she can keep out of the Franco-Graeco-British situation, and on this second issue the world looks to her for some sort of leadership. So far, the Washington conference has excluded any consideration of the economic and financial disorder of the world. But that consideration cannot be indefinitely delayed. It is becoming pressingly necessary.

Dissolution Goes On While We Debate

All the while we are debating here about Japanese supremacy and agitations, and what we really mean by the "Open Door," and whether we shall have 40,000 or 90,000 tons of submarines, and so on, the economic dissolution of the world goes on.

The immediate effect of partial disarmament, indeed, both in Britain and Japan, may be even to increase the economic difficulties of those countries by throwing considerable masses of skilled labor out of work. I propose in my next paper to discuss this process of economic and social disruption which is now going on throughout the world, beneath the surface of our formal international relations.

It is the larger reality of the present world situation which the brothers, and dramatic incidents of the earlier sessions at Washington have for a time thrust out of our attention.

POLICEMAN KILLS MAN IN ATTEMPTED BREAK

New York, Nov. 25.—Patrolman William Bostwick of the Morrisania station shot and killed Richard Barrell, twenty years old, at One Hundred and Fifty-second street and Webb avenue. Bostwick suffered injuries in a fight with six men, two of whom were caught. The patrolman is in the Lincoln Hospital with concussion of the brain and lacerations of the face and scalp. The attack followed Bostwick's pursuit and arrest of Barrett, who, with the other men was trying to get into a bakery

ACCUSED SPRINGFIELD POLICEMAN CLEARED

Springfield, Nov. 25.—Hot political argument followed the acquittal here of Patrolman William J. Lyons, Jr., charged by Chief of Police Marshall Belmer of West Springfield with accepting a money bribe in an alleged liquor-running deal. Belcmer, in secret conference, found insufficient grounds for sustaining the charges. The patrolman has been reinstated and whispers in the air of further developments are rife.

After-Thanksgiving Sale

BEGINNING TODAY

AN After-Thanksgiving Sale—and not a single price quoted in this advertisement. To begin with, we could not possibly give you the prices of all the articles we have selected for our After-Thanksgiving Sale without making this announcement look like a page from a catalogue.

And what good would the printing of mere prices do you? The price quoted in any advertisement cannot possibly tell you the story you want.

You want to know whether the merchandise is what you need. Will it serve you? Is it stylish? Is it dependable? Is it fresh, or is it something bought especially to put on sale to attract mere bargain-hunters?

While no prices are mentioned in this advertisement, you, knowing the Slattery standard, will find it easy to believe that the values offered are extraordinary.

The goods marked down are odd sizes, odd colors—just broken lots of our regular standard merchandise that we want to sell in order to make room for unusually large shipments of holiday specialties.

There are no samples, no job-lot, out-of-style, bargain-counter items listed because there is no stock of that kind anywhere in our store.

Our chief appeal to you is the opportunity we are offering you to come in and see for yourself what, in our opinion, are extraordinary values.

Slattery prefers giving service to quoting prices.

That is why there are no prices quoted in this advertisement.

RELIGIOUS ISSUE DISAVOWED BY PELLETIER

Declares if Injected Into Campaign It Is Not of His Seeking

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, candidate for Mayor, in a statement issued last night, declares that the issue of race and religious prejudice, if it is to be an issue in the Boston Mayoralty campaign, is none of his seeking.

"I have carefully avoided by word and act everything that might lend aid to the whispered propaganda being circulated that 'Pelletier is making a racial and religious appeal to the voters.'" He says, "This lying rumor has come to me from many sources. It is widespread and is gaining in strength daily.

"A religious issue in a political campaign is repugnant to the Good Government-Bar Association-Union Club clique only when it proves detrimental to their own interest. It is well known that this year they decided that only a man of the prevailing race and religion in Boston could win. In selecting the candidate they did. I ask whether they themselves did not inject the religious issue?

"They didn't really want that man. They took him to play the game, to use him as a means of disrupting the Catholic vote. That is the plain truth, and if that isn't injecting religion into politics what is?

"This whole Goo-Goo-Union Club-Welch and Ward proposition is permeated with intolerance and bigotry. These people raise their right hand in holy horror at the mere mention of religion and party in connection with political matters, while with their left hand they themselves set the wheels turning to their own advantage.

"I stand for tolerance and equal opportunity of all races and all creeds. I have proved that times innumerable in the conduct of the district attorney's office and in other matters. I hold it a detestible thing for this clique to start their vile whispering propaganda. It seems to me like the old story of the pickpocket who, fearing discovery in a large crowd, points to someone on the edges and cries, 'Stop, thief!'"

$8,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE ON WASHINGTON STREET

Fire, starting in the fifth floor of a six-story building at No. 578 Washington street, threatened the entire structure early today. The blaze was discovered in the ladies' clothing manufacturing plant of Raphael Brothers by a watchman. When the firemen arrived the blaze had made considerable headway, but was confined to the fifth floor. Damage was estimated at $8,000. Cause of the blaze is undetermined. The building is owned by the Perry estate.

ANOTHER EASY PICTURE IN BOOK TEST

No. 15 Looks Hard, but Isn't Such a Problem After All

Not even a contest artist would inflict us with a brain twister so soon after the holidays and so, again today, we are face to face with a "problem" which, upon close examination, isn't much of a problem after all.

The title is—but you'll want to find this one for yourself.

It's there! One title in today's list fits today's picture better than any other title in the list. That title is the correct title. One of these days the Test Editor may forget to make this statement. Midway in the Test his daily "column" will evaporate to next to nothing. The guarantee will stand.

REAL PICTURE TEST.

In one contest drawing, a few months ago, the artist presented a boy and a girl holding hands and studying a beautiful face outlined in the skies. "It's the goddess of the rainbow," said one of the children.

All sorts of titles were chosen for that picture. The Correct Title was in the List of Titles the day the picture appeared. That title was "Iris."

Do YOU know the story of "Iris"? It is told briefly in some of the dictionaries.

This was one of the instances the Test Editor has had in mind when, from time to time, he has advised participants in the Boston American's $7,000 Book Title Picture Test that the List of Titles is quite as important as the Test Drawing.

This does not mean that every single drawing will call for investigation: it does mean that you must take nothing for granted. It remains to be seen whether the absence of text from these pictures will be helpful or harmful. Many who took part in the two preceding tests thought the words in the pictures a bit of a nuisance. Some asked for a real "picture test." You are having it.

HOLD PICTURES UNTIL END.

If you are new to the Test, please observe that pictures and titles must NOT be sent in from day to day. Hold them until the competition ends, with the appearance of Test Drawing No. 60. Then send them in "all together at one time."

To the 219 readers who, at the close of the Book Test, send in the largest numbers of Correct Titles, the Boston American will pay the following awards in cash:

One First Award	$1,000
One Second Award	750
One Third Award	500
One Four Award	400
One Fifth Award	300
One Sixth Award	200
One Seventh Award	150
One Eighth Award	100
One Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 each	550
Total	$5,000

Each of the sixty Pictures which make up the Book Test is intended to represent the TITLE of a book. Not the story, not the contents of the book, but its title. Title only!

BAD OUTLOOK FOR ARTIST.

It is not necessary to know any thing about the books themselves in order to get the sixty correct titles. The pictures have nothing to do with what is IN the books. We have tried to tell everybody the Correct Titles of two of the pictures for the reason that, in including them in the Test the artist forgot this important declaration. The Correct Titles in question are: No. 5, "Robinson Crusoe." No. 8, "Rip Van Winkle." The fact that to most participants those two problems were easy does not alter the fact. Those are gift titles. Write them down.

With everybody tipped to the importance of the List of Titles we do not know how Mr. Artist can escape, this time, without some of you running up a score of sixty on him. But the boy bears a charmed life! Apparently he expects to get away with it.

If you write to the Test Editor, by the way, and want a prompt reply, please send along a stamped and self-addressed envelope. Under the office rules anonymous letters are given to the cat. Sign your name and address. They will not be printed in the paper. Let's be friends!

Another Test picture tomorrow and before many days we must expect this artist to settle down to business and show what he's got.

Getting the Boston American regularly and without difficulty?

The one certain way is to leave that standing order.

Atlanta, Nov. 25.—Mayor James L. Key has vetoed the ordinance passed by the council last Monday forbidding the joint worship of whites and negroes in Atlanta churches. BLIND GIRL ASTOUNDS PROFESSORS "WITH FINGERS THAT SEE"

BEGONE, BIRTH CONTROL! The canine colony at Los Angeles was shocked when "Boots," a thoroughbred English pit bull, gave birth to 13 of the sweetest little pups you ever saw. They were shocked, because this is the second time it's happened. They are eaten at dinner. Note the spoiled saucers. (Int.)

"BOOTS" herself entertaining her family at dinner. Giving birth to 13 pups twice is unusual, dog breeders declare. Owned by George J. Nimiss.

LOOKING for peace and plenty of it: Baron Edmund von Thermann, who has just arrived here to take up his duties as the German charge d'affaires at Washington, the first since the war, is bent on establishing the most cordial relations between the two countries. (U. & U.)

CHARMING THE EYE! Orchid crepe de chine, with pale pink ribbon roses set on a panier of ribbon, is one of the most charming party gowns of the season. (U. & U.)

"SEEING EINSTEIN THROUGH! Dr Delmar A. Whitson, distinguished scientist has undertaken to photograph by moving pictures the curves and baffling Einstein theory. He believes that an actual demonstration of the theory will do what scientific essays will not. Dr. Whitson (above) is explaining theory to Anita Stewart. (U. & U.)

LOLLING IN THE LAGOON! Picturesque natives of Java and their pleasure boat. The only trouble with it is that the crew takes up so much room the passengers have to stand on the deck. ( )

REV. BRANDFORD CLARKE, poet, painter, preacher, of London, is the only pastor to illustrate his sermons with his own paintings. (Int.)

MRS. MARY E. FLANERY, whose term begins in January, is first woman to sit in the Kentucky Legislature. Elected with 255 more votes than incumbent. (U. & U.)

CALL AN ALIENIST! Meet Arnold W. Brunner, N. Y. architect, just re-elected architectural advisor to the State of Pennsylvania, who insisted that his salary be cut from $20,000 to $14,000. (Int.)

SHOOTING THE BIG GUNS AT THE DISARMAMENT PARLEY. Every day on this page you see the finished work of the ubiquitous camera man, so just for the novelty of the sight, we want you to see how they do it. In the above photograph the pictures be[illegible] snapping the chairman of the various delegations to the conference. Nearly every type of "fast" camera is used, even to the mountainous affair you observe in the middle of the photo. And the movie men, of course, must do their bit. It's not so easy for them sometimes, they have to grind their "stuff" for several minutes. (Int.)

KINGS OF THE GLAZED SURFACE! Now that football has been wiped from the sport calendar, Old Man Hockey is on the job with the finest set of pro-sters in many seasons. Above is the hockey team of the Royal Bank of Canada, who have arrived here to compete against the fastest puck chasers in "the States." We have several teams right here in Boston that would afford them considerable activity. (N.)

The Walnut Room Taken for Granted

Many cordial compliments have been received on the successful "opening" of this beautiful section of the store, "The Walnut Room." And they are gratifying.

But it does seem as if the greatest possible compliment is that by word and by act so many of our friends take this outward and visible sign of progress as a matter of course. "It is only what one might expect from a business proceeding on such simple but sound principles of business as yours," seems to epitomize the general verdict.

That this remodeled corner—Bedford street—has been attractively planned for better service and more agreeable environment is proved by the increasing number of visitors—amounting at times now to crowds—and the marked increase in the volume of business.

New and very large stocks—the very newest things as well as freshly replenished assortments of staple qualities, so that you will get the best here.

And each week many new lots at very special prices.

LITTLE BOOK EXPLAINS ABOUT FOREIGN OILS

Arguments to show that trade in foreign vegetable oils does not injure the American dairyman and farmer are presented by John Ise in a pamphlet issued by the Bureau of Raw Materials for the American Vegetable Oils and Fats Industries. The booklet shows that agitation for prohibitive tariffs against foreign vegetable and animal oils is based on misapprehensions on the [illegible] edible portion of the imported vegetable and animal oils being used for edible purposes. Also it is stated that the great bulk of the imported oils are used in the manufacture of vital essentials, such as laundry soaps, printers' inks, tin plate, tanners' oil, steel plate, core oil for foundries, paint and innumerable other manufactured articles. Copies of the pamphlet, which is entitled, "Foreign Vegetable Oils and American Lard and Butter," can be obtained free from the Bureau, No. 843 Munsey Building, Washington.

WHAT IS A "BALANCED" TEA?

Tea is blended for the same reason that dietitians advise "balanced rations."

A beverage made from one grade of tea alone would prove flat and unpalatable. Not all teas are blended, or "balanced". Not all blends are pleasing or palatable.

LIPTON'S Tea is blended, by experts, to produce just the right taste, aroma and cup quality.

LIPTON'S—the world's finest tea—is grown in Ceylon and in India. It is picked, cured, packed and shipped to America from the Lipton Plantations. Then it is blended in the great Lipton warehouses—every step of the work from plant to package under Lipton supervision.

Ask your grocer for Lipton's Yellow Label Tea. If he does not sell it, send us his name and address and we will mail you a FREE sample and give you the name of a grocer who can supply you.

Great audiences are also to feel keen pleasure in her smart Winter effects, and as cited above are two dresses with matching capes that one likes. At the figure at the left the smoke-colored cape is fully lined to the frock beneath it by means of gray satin, which is also used to trim the edge of the cape and the cuffs of each side of the top. But when we look at the dress and cape in the picture at the right we find that the cape is not lined to the dress beneath it, but is lined with a contrasting color, and the cape is trimmed with the same material as the dress. Both of these models are suitable for the matron or the miss, and can be reproduced in the home with a little effort.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

The newspapers have deluged us with enthusiastic comments on the permanent conference from statesmen at home and abroad, from financiers, from business leaders, from labor leaders, from ministers, from professors and even from armament makers.

But what do those at the other end of society think of the proposals and the proceedings? Are they thinking about it at all?

A score of representatives to an association the other day: "Go out and tell about the Washington conference and Limited Armaments, to the shorehemen, street cleaners, East Side housewives, immigrants, tenements, elevator operators and average young girls in factories and stores, manicure girls, etc. Report except that each day we get the names, addresses and occupations of all the people you interview."

* * *

The results are not flattering to our standard of education. The percentage who knew absolutely nothing about anything going on at Washington is discouraging. A still larger number said that they had heard something about cutting down armies and navies, but confessed to having no interest whatsoever in the subject.

Those who were aware of the Washington happenings were almost to a man very much in favor of the idea of disarmament, "Anything to stop war." These women, some of them mothers of dead soldiers, all manifestly shrank from the thought of another war. As one woman expressed it, "It's the poor folks that suffer most, that always do."

* * *

Among the young girls questioned, few exhibited any interest.

* * *

Among the working men there was far from unanimity of endorsement of America's navy plan. Roughly, half approved the idea, provided proper guidance was given, for the insure the safety of our own country.

What form did objections take? Briefly, they fell into two main groups.

First—Distrust of Japan.

Second—Distrust of England.

Several voiced, very forcibly, this thought: "If England's for it, America ought to be against it, for England's not for anything that would help America."

* * *

Others called Japan all sorts of names, the gist of which was that Japan is shy as a fox, jealous of the United States, and eager to do to America what she did to Russia and China.

Another thing the interview brought out was a rather widespread feeling that these humble workers that it doesn't matter a hoot what they are for or against that their ideas and wishes don't count in Nirvana with the prominent people who decree wars.

Even the proud boast of educated Americans that this land consists of over a hundred million sovereign "Kings, Jills" is not shared by many belonging to the so-called masses. It was apparent that they felt that they or their children count for much in the eyes of those shaping the destinies of the nation.

So much for the state of mind of those belonging to the humbler state of society.

What of the latest views of financial and business men concerning the prospects of the success of the conference?

Briefly, there is a stronger and wider feeling today than there was before the conference opened that tangible, far-reaching results will be achieved.

The scepticism and cynicism voiced by many of the letters attending the conference and the disappointment they express over the "abortive" outcome of the proceedings are not generally shared by financial and business men accustomed to conducting affairs on a big scale. Their view is, rather, that events have moved, astonishingly rapid and that the proceedings have followed distantly more practical, specific lines than have been expected.

Wall Street's conception of the effects of what Secretary Hughes proposed has undergone a transformation. Wall Street's first thought was only of the adverse influence the stoppage of battleship building would have upon certain stocks. The speeches since delivered by Schwab and Gary, and those so impressed by many other financial and business leaders, have convinced the stock market that the success of the conference would, after all, have a beneficial effect upon the business world, upon taxes, upon the money market and, consequently, upon securities.

Incidentally, Japan's tactics when the talking stage is over and when brass tack action is taken up, are awaited with eager interest, as not a few harbor doubts as to the actual willingness of Japan's militaristic governing class to pull in their horns.

Stocks Irregular in New York at Noon; Money 5%; Exchange Rates Lower

RAILS ADVANCE AND STEELS DECLINE

Majority of Issues Up at End of Morning; Oils Have Mixed Movement

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Irregularity characterized the New York list at noon, but the majority of stocks were up at that time on that exchange. Rails were the leaders of the advance, while United States Steel touched morning level. Steels were weak, excepting Gulf States Steel. It sold at its year's highest, climbing four points.

Oils had a mixed movement. Motors were off and specialties steady. The market was quiet, first hour transactions aggregating about 175,000 shares. Call money opened at 5 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were lower, demand sterling dropping to $3.90. Weakness of marks featured this market.

HAD A QUIET START.

The market had a quiet start and trading for awhile was confined to a few issues. Among them was Davison Chemical, which advanced two points to a new record high on a few sales and lost all the gain and more in a few others. Gulf States sold at its 1929 highest. Rails soon became strong, Union Pacific, Reading, Southern Pacific and Great Northern advancing a point or more. Erie, Lackawanna and Western, Great Northern preferred and Canadian Pacific, all moved up a point or more. Endicott Johnson and Sumatra made good gains also. But for the list in general the improvement was fractional. After an irregular opening the market improved. It verged on strength at the end of an hour, although steels were weak and a number of oils showed losses. Carson Hill was traded in on the New York Exchange for the first time. It opened at the closing figure in Boston on Wednesday.

BANKERS INTERESTED.

One statement regarding the outlook is that banking interests expect a decided advance for stocks early in the new year and that they are more interested in the market now than for months. It is said that they are resisting rallies on certain stocks, including rails, and that U. S. Steel is getting most of its support from this source. In many cases, however, there is talk of a decided reaction before a decided bull movement under way. Traders in many quarters the latter is expected before long. This is based upon an improvement in fundamental conditions.

Leather Prices Firmer

Packer hide and leather prices are firmer and packers are getting 1 1-2 cents a pound more for hides in August. The Chicago supply of hides is small, sales within about a week aggregating 30,000 hides. Similar scarcity reflects this. As regards the shoe trade the output of some Massachusetts factories is reported as normal, manufacturers report they have all the orders they can fill.

Railroad Items

The Alabama Great Southern has applied for authority to issue $1,000,000 of first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of 1943.

The Southern Pacific reports that October gross of the system decreased $3,085,697, but it gained $1,550,000 in net operating income.

The Union Pacific is seeking control of the Saratoga & Encampment road, a 50-mile line in Wyoming.

St. Paul's holdings, including Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern, during the year were reduced $9,412 a month ago, and $11,350 a year ago.

Western Pacific directors have been authorized to issue $3,000,000 first mortgage bonds to be sold at par plus interest. The proceeds are to be used to redeem $2,700,000 equipment gold bonds.

For October Union Pacific reports that gross of the system increased $740,146, while net decrease is not was $617,121.

A rival financial publication says that the Pere Marquette Railway Company expected to have completed by the end of October ordering arrangements for equipment and materials.

No earning has been distributed on its share account for 1921 but the company has cash approximating $4,500,000.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Nov. 25.—On poor cables from Liverpool and a somewhat unfavorable interpretation of developments at the conference in Washington the cotton market opened unsettled its position and at the start dropped 18 to 40 points from Wednesday's close. Later, however, there was active, local and New Orleans buying and after the first hour prices generally were increased and by the end of fifteen minutes trading the list was 20 to 25 points net lower on active months. Opening prices were: December 18.25; March 18.45; May 18.65; July 18.10; May 17.75; July 17.40; October, 16.28.

Town and City Loans

Brockton, Mass., has sold $50,000 5 per cent. coupon sewerage and playground loan bonds, dated October 1, 1921, and maturing in each of years 1922 to 1931, inclusive, to Arthur Perry & Co., at 100.07.

Dover, Mass., will receive proposals until 8 p. m., November 30, for $50,000 of "Town hall, school and public building loan" bonds, dated December 1, 1921, and maturing in each of years 1922 to 1931 inclusive.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Wheat opened 1¼ higher to ¼ lower, with December and May unchanged to ¼ higher. Local trade was 10 million. Opening prices: December, Wheat, 1.13¼; May, 1.14 to 1.14¼; corn, December, 50¾ to 50⅞; May, 59¾ to 59⅞; oats, December, 35⅝ to 35¾; May, 39⅞ to 39¾. Lard, January, 8.72; March, 8.90 to 8.90.

London Market

London, Nov. 25.—The stock market was dull today. Canada 4% 3½'s were down 90 to 89; 4½s 84, 5½ to 5s 97½; French, 5% 1st 1. Russian 5s, 9½; 4½s, 6½; 4s 7½; Rio Tinto 24.

ONLY GERMANS CAN REBUILD GERMANY

Evans Declares All Schemes to "Stabilize" Finance Are Reduced to Absurdity

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—"Somebody dump the water out of the ocean. It is drowning me," cried a man who has fallen overboard. The people remaining on the ship would more people remaining on the ship would more readily answer the unlucky man a line or send a small boat after him, but he is excited and his judgment is bad.

Some of those who are contriving schemes for stabilizing the international exchanges appear to be in the same frame of mind. The thing to do is to pull the man out and let the ocean go on its way.

Clearly the German ocean of currency should be drained off. But there is not enough salt in it to keep it from putrefaction. It is the German man that should be saved, though it must be admitted that the problem of getting him out of the water is not a simple one. Certain it is that merely telling him more ocean is not the remedy.

TWO USELESS PLANS.

This view of affairs is apropos talk in this city and elsewhere of a plan of "stabilizing" the exchanges. There are two main dollar plans for stabilizing the exchanges before the public. One fathered by a United States Senator and the other by a well-known financier.

It is not yet shown how such an institution would differ from banks now in existence, which are doing just the things that the proposed banks would do and probably in a better way, because actuated by the ordinary motives for banking business. Talk to a hard-headed banker of this city on those schemes and he will politely suppress a smile.

The fact is, many people lose their heads when confronted by a great problem, and this problem is the biggest one of the financial kind the world has ever come up to. They are like a father greatly distressed over a desperately sick child who dissolves the doctor calls back on a humbug medicine or an incantation.

We must carry the main facts along in this situation if we are to get out of prosperity; indeed, they are much more important in the former case than in the latter. We have as the basis for value in paper currency—tangible property, productive power, intelligence, integrity. These things will bear a certain amount of credit inflation, but the experience of mankind as the experience of mankind has determined about how much.

WHAT GERMANY NEEDS.

There is nothing for Germany but the country itself, with its moderate wealth, its intelligent and determined people and the interested good will in of its competitors in trade. The currency issues are mere paper suits covering the whole country and less effective against the chill of the world than were the paper suits worn by the Germans during the war. Salvation must come through extinction of this currency and a new beginning. It is unpleasant to see that this cannot be done with great inequity and suffering to many people.

International stabilization means that the rich country must throw its wealth into the scale, and that we will not do beyond a moderate loan, and the contribution of good will and general helpfulness. Stabilization means reducing to an average, that is placing the currencies of the world on a common level. Europe has long wanted us to do something of the sort, but we take the idea only in a general way. The Goddess of Liberty can hardly be expected to hand herself out to the old world.

NOTHING BUT ABSURDITY.

From nothing that has been said thus far one can see nothing but absurdity in the plan—the oceans divided with a ton of paper, and finance reduced to thin tissues, credit existing in the air, trade by the sky, and where have we learned how to "stabilize" poverty and riches, mix an abstract idea with a ton of pig iron, make a skyscraper out of a prairie and so forth.

There may be some utility in an international bank in the way of clearing the currencies of the world and increasing the conveniences of commerce, but that will have little to do with the stabilization of the different countries. The slow process of equalizing wealth is the only real thing. In the main European countries have been acting on that principle for they are hungry, poor and practical.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Price movements in the security markets this week have been dictated by conflicting considerations, and the result has been an array of confusing fluctuations so far as the general list is concerned. While a few specialists have moved upward very sharply as a consequence of individual influences of a favorable character, the majority of stocks have shown no important average change. Pools have been much less active during the week, and scattered profit-taking has cut down some of the recent gains established in the oils, equipments, steels and low-priced rails. In the rail group an upward tendency has been displayed by relatively few issues, and these advances have been attributed to special causes, such, for example, as in the case of Missouri Pacific preferred.

AS soon as there has been sufficient profit-taking to effect stability, it is the general belief here that conditions prevailing in petroleum and copper production will warrant a fresh bullish activity in the shares representing these industries.

IN some respects financial sentiment has suffered discouragement from the passage of the tax bill in its present form, and also as a result of the abandonment of the railroad funding bill. It is generally believed that no effort will be made to pass the latter measure, but there has been a strong atmosphere to sustain the contention that the railroads are now in no earning basis that obviates the urgent necessity of the assistance that the bill would have provided.

THE new revenue bill is expected to yield about $3,218,000,000 for the fiscal year 1922 and reduce the burden to $2,611,000,000 for the fiscal year 1923. The surtaxes on individual incomes are placed at a maximum of 50 per cent., which is a reduction of 13 per cent. from the operation of the present law. About the only consolation Wall Street derives from the new law is the provision stating in effect that in the case of securities sold two years after their purchase, any profits accruing therefrom may be considered as capital gains subject to a tax of 12½ per cent, instead of being subjected to income, which would be subject, in case of large incomes, to a much higher tax, including surtax. This bill, however, is evidently a makeshift that does not go down to the economic roots of the case, and business in general will obtain very little relief from its provisions.

THE unexpected strength in call money has been caused chiefly by a sensitive response of funds resulting from their absorption by the offering of such a flood of attractive securities recently. The increased demand, in other words, has depleted the supply of funds available for the speculative market.

SO BIG HE HAS CHAIR THAT'S ONE-YARD SQUARE

New York, Nov. 25.—The seats of the city fathers will be dwarfed by comparison to Lilliputian size, when Frank J. Dotzler, Republican alderman-elect from the 18th district arrives with his specially constructed furniture, January 1. Dotzler lists his weight in excess of 300 pounds and finds it necessary to take part. The city had the chair built into a seating capacity of one square yard. The city has the chair built for him several years ago when, upon his election to the board of aldermen, it was discovered that he could not squeeze into the regular chairs. They or bought it for $1 when he retired, because the city was short of storage space.

Hat Sounds Burglar Alarm

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—A burglar alarm sounded in the heart of this city's downtown business district, it thrilled theatregoers and late shoppers. A crowd of about 1,000 persons gathered in front of the Krag store, High and Gay streets, streets where the alarm originated. The probe resulted in the discovery that electric wires had been chewed

O'FLANAGAN TO SPEAK FOR NEW IRISH LOAN

Vice-President of Sinn Fein to Open Bay State Tour Next Monday

Rev. Michael O'Flanagan, vice-president of the Sinn Fein, acclaimed as the most powerful and brilliant of Irish orators, who is in the United States in behalf of the new foreign loan of the Irish Republic, will start on a tour of Massachusetts next Monday.

His trip will include, among other cities in New England, Fall River, Monday evening; Lowell, Tuesday; Lawrence, December 2; Springfield, December 4; Worcester, December 5, and Boston, where he will speak at the Boston Opera House, December 6.

His itinerary will be under auspices of the executive committee of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic.

Father O'Flanagan of Roscommon, Ireland, already has been heard in Washington, New York, Philadelphia and other American cities. He is regarded by the Sinn Feiners and the British government as one of the founders of the Sinn Fein and the Republican movement in Ireland. He is serving his second term as vice-president of the Sinn Fein, having been re-elected the day he left Ireland for his trip to the United States.

It was Father O'Flanagan who was chiefly responsible for the election in Roscommon of Count Plunkett, father of one of the leaders executed by the British after Easter Week in Dublin. Count Plunkett was the first Irish representative to be elected on a platform of out-and-out independence.

After this Father O'Flanagan bent all his influence and energy toward harmonizing of all elements in Erin that desired the freedom of Ireland. For a time he was acting president of Sinn Fein while De Valera and Griffith were prisoners of the British government.

His eloquence has been officially recognized by his spiritual superiors, and he has twice been called to Rome to preach before the Pope himself.

His home has been repeatedly raided by the British soldiers and Black and Tans, and at least four attempts have been made upon his life.

GOES ON TRIAL FOR STRANGLING 2 MEN

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Harvey Church, charged with killing Lawrence Beverly and Carl Ausmus, automobile salesmen, goes on trial today. Church confessed to the crimes after he was arrested, according to the police, but afterward he repudiated the purported confession. Daugherty and Ausmus went to Church's home to deliver an automobile. Ausmus' body was found buried in Church's garage and that of Daugherty in a river. Church admitted strangling his victims with a rope, although he first denied an axe to stun them, the police said.

REFORMATORY BOYS FEAST ON TURKEY

Six hundred pounds of turkey were consumed yesterday by the 512 pris-oners at the Massachusetts Reformatory, Concord Junction. The vegetables served were products of the reformatory farm. Early in the morning the "boys" had short yard liberty.

The reformatory band gave a concert in the guard room.

Motion Picture News and Gossip

By FRIEDA DAVIS

IN a recent article in the New York World, Heywood Broun brought up "something else again" in the line of the motion pictures. It came up in the course of some correspondence he received regarding the influence of books on the lives of their readers. He shows the influence of the film on some of the fans.

"The young woman," he wrote, "who has just watched D'Artagnan defy the best swordsmen in France is not likely to be profoundly stirred by the attentions of any fat young man who parts his hair in the middle and asks, 'Excuse my glove.'

"Swinburne seems to be the phantom rival from our correspondent's Romeos must vanquish. This refers to a letter he quoted. "But in more cases it will be Douglas Fairbanks. At first sight the thing looks hopeless. One might rush to the assumption that there will never be any more romance, since every person in the world carries with him or her heart ideals of physical grace and beauty impossible of attainment except in the flat, fictional and dimensional land of screen people.

FAR BEHIND PROMISES.

"Even the movie stars themselves will not meet the romantic requirements, for they are always far behind the promise of their pictures. In the films Mary see Douglas jump to the backs of horses and over gates and fences, but if it were possible to watch these feats in the flesh you would find that they do not note that the property man has provided springs for him, in the ground or on the fence.

"No, the actors themselves have created fictions which they cannot fulfill. Moreover, in the case of marriage goes, there never could be quite enough movie heroes of the first magnificence to go round. The thing looks hopeless until one remembers that life invariably catches up with art in a century or so. Man has only to create something and nature can imitate it.

"Charlie Chaplin has not been before the public more than a dozen or eight years, and already people fall differently. Fat men used, once upon a time, merely to go down kerplunk and then get up again. Now they seem eager to realize the utmost comic possibility of a tumble.

"A fat man is not content with a fall unless he can manage to bump his head and break his hat. Moreover, he is generally careful to do it again if nobody saw him the first time. We need not worry. In his own good time life will catch up with the movies."

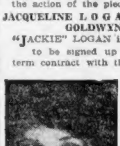
NEW FILM WRITER.

THE newest writer to succumb to the lure of the movies is George Ade, one of the most famous humorists of this country. Mr. Ade, who is a close friend of Thomas Meighan, the Paramount star, was persuaded by the latter to write a film story, while Meighan was visiting at the Ade farm in Brook, Ind., a few weeks ago.

The story, which was written expressly for Meighan, is to be called "The Leading Citizen." Mr. Ade is already on his way to Hollywood to supervise the writing of the continuity and the wielding of the megaphone over the action of the piece.

JACQUELINE LOGAN WITH GOLDWYN

"JACKIE" LOGAN is the latest to be signed up an a long term contract with the Goldwyn company. She has already starred with Richard Dix, opposite Lois Chaney in "The Secret of Claudius." Miss Logan has been a prominent figure in film circles since she deserted the stage last year, where she was appearing as a member of the sensational revival of "Foradora." She was featured in "The Perfect Crime," an Allan Dwan production starring Monte Blue, and later played with Thomas Meighan in "White and Unmarried."



JACQUELINE LOGAN

CAMERA CLICKS.

THE next William De Mille production will consist of the newest Paramount stars, Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt. The story, which has not yet been titled, is from the pen of Clara Beranger.

WHAT is it about the films that gives a player a bigger value in the eyes of a theatrical producer? When Will Rogers was on the stage before he entered the screen world, he was receiving $1,000 a week. Now that he is back on Broadway in person he is getting $3,000 a week.

LARRY SEMON has a new leading lady. She is Anne Hastings, whose screen appearance was in "Hurricane Hutch." She left New York a few days ago for the Coast to co-operate in the next Semon comedy, a theatrical story.

WOMEN VOTERS WILL HEAR CANDIDATES

The Boston League of Women Voters is offering the opportunity to hear all the candidates for the City Council and School Committee in the coming Cosmopolitan next Monday afternoon at 3:30 p. m. In addition to these candidates for city offices there will also be heard the candidate who has received the indorsement for Mayor, John R. Murphy.

A NOVEL OF BIBLE TIMES

"Go and Sin No More" is the subtitle of "Revelation," which some call the "greatest novel of Bible times since Ben Hur." "Revelation" by Dubois Deamer, is a romance of the woman who was brought before the Saviour to be stoned to death. Read it in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

FILM ACTRESS A LUSITANIA SURVIVOR

Rita Jolivet, in "Theodora," Waited for Death at Side of Frohman

People who see "Theodora," biggest of all the Italian screen spectacles, which Goldwyn is now presenting at the Shubert Theatre, will find a solution for a theatrical mystery started by the U-boat that sank the Lusitania.

On board the ill-fated Cunarder were Charles Frohman and a young French actress named Rita Jolivet. They happened to meet and stand side by side as the passengers waited for death or rescue. With the panic-stricken crowd, but the famous theatrical producer made a remark that was cabled all around the world.

"Why fear death?" he said, "it is the most beautiful adventure in life."

Frohman's body was picked up a day later. Miss Jolivet, who could swim well, and who had a rugged physique to withstand the chill of the water, remained afloat until saved by a lifeboat crew. She told the dramatic story at the inquest held hurriedly on the Irish coast.

After her recovery from the shock of the disaster this French actress went to Italy, where two years ago she became the bride of the Count de Cippico. When the Unione Cinematografica Italiana undertook the filming of "Theodora" they chose Miss Jolivet to portray the title role.

DRAMATIC FILM AT MODERN NEXT WEEK

What is said to be one of the most interesting and dramatic, as well as one of the biggest productions of the season, come to the Beacon and Modern Theatres next week.

It is a picturization of the drama, "Mary Tudor" by Victor Hugo, and tells a tense story of "Bloody Mary," England's first queen regnant.

Fabiano Fabiani, an Italian adventurer, has managed to insinuate himself into the Queen's favor, and has induced her to elevate him to the English nobility. In spite of the cold advice of her counselors.

To cure her of her infatuation the ambassador of Spain finds a girl to swear that Fabiani has wronged her. The Queen's love turns to hate and she condemns her favorite to death. Mary relents and determines to save him. She sends him a message, with gold with which to bribe the jailers, but Jane uses it to free her own lover.

The outcome, in which a man's head falls, is shown at the conclusion of the picture. Ellen Richey has the part of Mary Tudor, having played the same role in a recent revival of Hugo's drama upon the speaking stage.

Judges Are Not Immune From Public Criticism

Mr. Pelletier Right in His Contention

Mr. Pelletier is quite right when he says that our judges are no more sacred from criticism than the Governor or the President who appoints them, or any other public official who is clothed with public opinion. But nobody so far as we know has suggested that the judges are immune from public criticism. The judges themselves certainly have not said so, nor is there anything before the Supreme Court concerning Mr. Pelletier which assumes that the judges are immune from public criticism.

This newspaper has frequently criticized the decisions of the Supreme Court, both of the United States and of the State, and we have never yet heard the slightest objection from any judge that the criticism was improper, no matter how much they may have thought that it was unfair. Our judges have already gained too much political power in this country. To make them immune from criticism, and the severest kind of public criticism, would be to destroy representative and democratic government altogether.

On the other hand, more harm is done by disturbing the public mind as to the personal honesty of our judges than disturbing the public mind as to the personal honesty of any of our public officials. It ought not to be necessary to demonstrate this proposition by argument. If a judge is personally dishonest and can be proved to be so, of course he should be punished. But the dereliction will leave its scar for years, just as the moral lapse of a clergyman puts a deeper scar on the clergy than on any other profession.

Were Gallivan and Tague Bought?

If there were any fear of Mr. Curley's election that fear would be entirely removed by the character of his rallies and the character of his speeches. The rallies are quite without enthusiasm except where he carries his audience with him in trucks; and his speeches are absolutely unconvincing. They are nothing but cheap, back-room slanders against the reputations of those who are opposing him. In his latest ebullition he declared that Congressman Tague and Congressman Gallivan had been bought to oppose him at the last election and that all the newspapers of Boston which had any political policy had been bought.

How many votes does he expect from an audience of intelligent American citizens by telling them, without proof, that men like Tague and Gallivan have been bought to oppose him?

He told his audience that three hundred and fifty thousand dollars had been raised to defeat him for Mayor. He might have made it three hundred and fifty million just as well, for those who believe the three hundred and fifty thousand dollar story would believe a three hundred and fifty million story.

Those who know the facts will smile at the sight of Mr. Curley representing himself as the poor David challenging the rich Goliath. He did that successfully before he was elected Mayor. He will never be able to "get away" with it again.

Offer of Navy Yard Workers

Proposal to Give Up Part of Pay to Bring Leviathan Here for Repairs Revolutionary in Best Sense of Word

Mayor Peters in a letter of November 21st calls to the attention of the Secretary of Navy an extraordinary proposal by the employes of our Boston Navy Yard. It apparently is a transcript of the records of the labor organization in the government yard. It is as follows:

At a meeting of the Metal Trades Council of the Navy Yard it was voted to submit to the members a plan by which each employe will offer a certain percentage of his pay to make up a fund to guarantee any excess of cost in reconditioning the LEVIATHAN above the estimate which the yard will make if given the opportunity.

Mayor Peters, commenting upon the proposal, says:

It seems to me that this expression of faith and confidence by 2,500 Navy Yard employes must impress the United States Navy Department and I believe it should receive substantial and practical recognition in placing in the hands of the yard authorities the specifications concerning this work, and allowing the yard to make a new estimate.

The proposal is really revolutionary, in the best sense of the word. We have always believed that government operation can be put upon a basis of efficiency quite beyond the attainment of private corporations of anything like equal magnitude. We should like to see the experiment tried, not only because we want to see the LEVIATHAN rebuilt in Boston, but because we should like to see how this proposal of the workmen will come out.

Lane Withdraws for Murphy

The Boston American congratulates Mr. Lane upon his decision to withdraw as a Republican candidate for Mayor in favor of Mr. Murphy. While we do not agree with him that his candidacy might have jeopardized Mr. Murphy's election, yet if he thought so, it was a fine thing for him to withdraw. The people of Boston do not vote for forlorn hopes, and, obviously, Mr. Lane and Mr. Baxter are forlorn hopes.

Mr. Baxter, who is personally a good fellow, is running ostensibly as a Republican candidate for Mayor. This is an unholy and a breach of the spirit of our City Charter, and of the policy of the Republican party in this State. Our City Charter does not permit the drawing of party lines in the city of Boston. If party lines could be drawn in the city of Boston, Mr. Baxter would be the last gentleman to run for Mayor as a Republican, for he knows what chance he would have under such circumstances.

We fear, however, that his candidacy as a Republican is only a camouflage, and that his real appeals against Mr. Murphy are to the same elements in the Republican party to which Mr. Curley is appealing in the Democratic party. However, they are in a small minority in both parties. That is the reason why we expect Mr. Murphy to win.

NELLIE BLY ON WHIPPING CHILDREN

Many Cases in Which Sparing Rod Seems Necessary to Save Child—Problem of One Mother Whose Little Son Persists in Disobedience

By Nellie Bly

THE first important thing in life to teach a child is obedience.

A child, like an animal, if not obedient is dangerous and practically useless.

In order to train a child, its elders must have absolute obedience. How is it to be obtained?

In the old days the maxim, "spare the rod and spoil the child," was as implicitly lived up to as the Commandments. In these advanced days, this maxim, like the Commandments, has fallen into disuse.

No one can logically support the theory of whipping. With some children it is unnecessary. With others a question arises, how else can they be taught obedience?

In the old days, when the schoolteacher wielded the rod or the ruler, children studied diligently and behaved in school with decorum. Today teachers have a heavy burden to bear with unruly, disobedient and disrespectful children. They are prohibited from inflicting punishment upon the little ones they are supposed to teach. Without any doubt, that is the first reason for so many toughs and criminals.

What father or mother who has had a similar problem will advise this mother what to do with her child? The letter follows:

Letter From Anxious Mother

"Dear Miss Bly: Knowing your great love for all children and, too, your sentiments regarding whipping as punishment, I feel I must write you asking you for some word for or against my method which is not whipping, but talking.

"My little son was five years old last month. He has the mentality of a child twice that age, through no special effort on my part, but only through his persistent questioning since he could talk, and by my being ever ready and willing to answer every question intelligently and to the best of my ability. He could read out of a child's book before three years old through his persistent asking what was that letter, etc. He also has a wonderful memory, memorizing poems just through hearing them read.

"I mention his mentality in particulars, because one would expect absolute obedience from a child so intelligent, who readily grasps just what one says to him. Or is there something wrong mentally with him? Is part of his brain so highly developed that it leaves some portion undeveloped or abnormal?

"The child adores me and I him. He has an unusual amount of love and affection for me, which again would seem that therein would lie my greatest power to sway him to my teachings. I have never spoiled him, having talked in many ways to him of obedience, its whys and wherefores. I could do it in a manner of talking to an adult almost, as he so readily grasps and understands.

"Very early in his life I noticed the tendency to disobedience, disregarding my admonishing along those lines, doing exactly opposite to what was told him; in fact, seeming to delight in doing the very thing he was told not to do. So it seemed to me, and does yet, that it was a sort of a fire or incentive to do what one wished him not to do, even though I would explain the why and wherefore he was not told to do certain things.

Not Defiant, but Persistent

"And he does disobey in such a manner all his own, being in the most loving and pleading way sorry. He is not deliberately bold and ugly-natured, angrily defiant, but in a sort of persistent way. I cannot just define how I mean it. It does not seem to be explainable. One would have to live with him to thoroughly understand.

"Now, then, several months ago, he started to Kindergarten. Days before, I spoke to him about how absolute obedience was necessary, how the teacher must be obeyed. It would cause her to have headaches if he did not obey her and how if he obeyed her it would help her in her work and would make things so much easier for her; also how it was to the child's own good to obey, as he would learn more rapidly.

"So along these lines and ways, many times I spoke to him. Oh, yes! He was going to do just so. He was going to remember what I told him. He would be obedient.

"Now I have been already called to school. The teacher says he does not obey her. He defies all her little rules. He will talk when told not to. And the other day, in taking turns to go to the park, in crossing streets he got out of line and dashed ahead of all others for a block, going into the park away in advance and alone. A few of the weaker little children followed him.

Early Training Important

"This upset and annoyed the teacher so much that she said she could not have him come to school any more if he did it again. She said when she punished him in the class, by not letting him play with the other children, he accepted his punishment with an air of, 'well, it was nothing to make a fuss over.' Using the teacher's words, he acted as if it was a happening of no consequence.

"All of the foregoing must seem to most people, probably to you also, a small problem, but oh, Miss Bly, to me it is paramount. I am heartbroken, sad and depressed. If I cannot play on the great love he bears me, what shall I do with him to obtain obedience.

"I know and realize my great and grave trust and responsibility for having given this little being life. I have tried to do my duty as I saw it. I love, adore I have told him, prayed earnestly for guidance.

"Miss Bly, have I failed? Don't you know how? Am I not fitted for this great problem of moulding and forming a human soul to go the right way?

"If there is any word of advice you could give me, and one find the time and space, I feel you will do so, because you love all children and would, therefore, do what you could for the betterment of one child's future.

"Thanking you for any attention given this letter, I am,

"A GRATEFUL MOTHER."

How is this mother to teach her child obedience—she has doubtless exhausted every means of persuasion and every course of reasoning; still the boy has his own way. If allowed to continue in this course, he is undoubtedly a ruined child.

Shall she resort to whipping, if every other way fails? Or is there some other punishment she could inflict which would be effective? It is a serious and important problem. A spoiled child is a ruined adult.

One Way to Teach Them

I have often remarked that babies which have been kept for a time in a hospital are most wonderfully good babies. They never cry. When adopted and taken to private homes they continue to be good and quiet babies. It is all the result of their training in the hospital. They soon learn while there that crying brings them nothing. Once they learn that they cease to cry.

Perhaps by ignoring disobedience and by ignoring the child who is disobedient for a period of time thereafter a number might bring good results. I have a small girl who had an annoying habit of not replying when spoken to. I talked with her repeatedly on the subject, but it made no impression. Finally, one day, after asking the same question several times and receiving no reply, I sat down and busied myself with other things. In a little while she came to me and asked a question. I kept on as if I did not hear her, she continued to ask questions. I continued my silence, taking absolutely no notice of her. At the end of a very long afternoon it suddenly dawned upon her what not answering questions meant. I then explained to her that my questions had been but a copy of hers.

I have never spoken to her on the subject since, but when I ask a question now I get a prompt reply.

Will other fathers and mothers and guardians suggest ways for this "grateful mother" to solve her problem of curing her child of disobedience?

PUTTING YOUR BEST FOOT FORWARD

You have been entertaining for some time a certain line of disturbing thought.

You find that your mind reverts to this unpleasant thought more and more.

Soon it may become a serious habit of yours to think irritating things.

And the more you harbor such thoughts the more disturbing they become.

If they happen to be relative to wanting ability or the likelihood of your losing your job, they are going to hamper you greatly in your work and spoil your productiveness and possibly be the direct means of you losing your job.

If you think you are falling down in any way, instead of worrying about it, take means to improve, instead of spoiling your chances of improvement by revolving tormenting, destructive thoughts.

You worry so much that you are unfit for practical work, when more thought given to improving your production would get you along better.

WOMEN WHO POSSESS A FEAR OF CATS

By Winifred Black

(Copyright, 1921, By Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

"I HATE cats," said the little woman with the soft eyes.

"They're such mean, sneaky, creepy, crawly, cruel, savage things.

"I saw one of them catch the prettiest little bird this morning and tear it to pieces—not because she was hungry, but because she was cruel and loved the fun of killing the pretty, harmless, little thing.

"If I'd had a pistol handy I would have shot that cat right then and there. I don't see how anybody can harbor such horrible beasts for a minute."

Her husband laughed indulgently.

"But, my dear," he said, "you can't blame the cats. They're made that way—they can't help it any more than a good, faithful dog can help being good and faithful. You ought not to hate an animal for what it can't help."

"Maybe I ought not," said the little woman, "but I do just the same."

That's just the way I feel about some people.

It is quite a fashion these days to say that those we dislike because they are born wrong, and a learned theorist entertained a roomful of rather intelligent people the other evening by telling us all that he believed nine out of ten criminals would have been decent, self-respecting men if they could have had some slight surgical operation in the early youth.

Perhaps he's right. Who am I to contradict him? but who is he to tell me that I must like thieves and entertain a feeling of respectful pity and kindly tolerance to burglars, forgers, murderers and the rest of the galaxy?

What of These?

I know a woman who can't be happy unless she's making some one else miserable. I have seen her miserable at the sight of another's happiness. Poor thing, I suppose she can't help it! She was made that way. But for all that I do not like her and never shall—and I don't like to be where she is or look at her or hear anything about her or even think of her.

I know a man who never made a business deal in his life without trying to cheat some one. And he began to cheat when he played marbles before he was eight years old. He cheats his own family every time he gets a chance, and fairly hugs himself to think how clever he is to do it.

Poor man—I suppose I ought to be sorry for him, but I'm not.

I'm sorry for his family!

I know a woman who won't make herself agreeable at home—never and never, not she. She's always ill or blue, or hysterical or despondent about something. But let a stranger come in, and who so gay and full of spirits as she?

What's Your Opinion?

She spends her husband's money as if he picked it off a tree in the garden. She buys clothes that she doesn't want, candy that she can't eat, tickets that she never uses—just for the fun of letting her friends see her waste money.

How much trouble she is to be so created, and, yet, somehow, I'm so sorry for husband that I haven't any "sorry" left to spend on her.

Very unreasonable and illogical and lacking in understanding of me—I admit it without a word of argument; but so it is.

You'll have to be sorry for me and make allowances, because, you see, I can't help it.

I was born so.

The Poet's Business

THE duty of the poet is like unto that of the naturalist; it is to pursue and capture those rare specimens of thought that have hitherto escaped the hunter's net; incase in crystal-clear diction these captive beauties of nature; and offer them, unto the wild-flowers of their native haunts, for the admiration, reverence and love of all mankind.

SPLENDID MEN EVER READY TO DARE

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

WHEN the ZR-2 dove down to destruction in the Humber, another invisible monument was reared in the hearts of men to the heroes of progress.

This giant dirigible had been built in England, to be transported across the Atlantic by a mixed British and American crew, for service in the United States Navy. That fact was full of romantic and dramatic interest.

But the most significant aspect of this picturesque experiment was in the fact that it was part of the scientific process of conquering the air for the peaceable purposes of mankind.

It had been one of the tragic incidents of the World War that man's achievement of wings—so long a haunting dream of the race—was first used effectively for mutual destruction!

This particular dirigible, which was wrecked on the eve of its transatlantic voyage, though designed for use with our naval forces, was of a pattern fitted for practical commerce.

The type of flyer therein under experimentation is a forerunner of the aerial fleets which the former British poet-laureate, Alfred Tennyson, foretold eighty years ago, when he

Poetic Prophecy

"Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails, pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales."

That was characteristically poetic prevision and prophecy! For we shall soon have fleets of aircraft engaged in the commercial and the generally peaceful and constructive activities of mankind.

That man's first use of flight was for destructive ends was an accidental coincidence with the late war, which did not really bring on the airplane and the dirigible, but did hasten their development to the point of serviceableness.

The tragedy connected with the ZR-2, although it claimed members of the British and American military forces as its victims, should be accepted as part of the price—not of war and preparation for war, but of mankind's determination to master all the elements.

According to the Bible, man was to have dominion over the earth and its animals, and over the fish of the sea and over the fowls of the air.

Since our ambition has gone beyond that early prescription of the human sphere of action, we have been called upon to pay a corresponding toll of lives.

Accordingly, we have brought our mortal tribute to the gods of the sea and of the air, for our invasion of realms foreign to our nature.

The tragic victims of the ZR-2 disaster are, therefore, to be reverenced in the light of man's boundless ambition to dominate the material universe.

Not to depreciate their connection with the department of war of their several countries, they are actually to be appreciated as heroes of peace, for even the extravagant and futile preparations of the nations may be regarded as a part—some day to be regarded as a part—of man's effort to bring order on the planet which he seeks to dominate.

Never a Lack

At the memorial service in honor of these heroes, the chaplain-in-chief of the Royal Air Forces rightly remarked that these never is a lack of splendid men ready to do and to dare—and, we would add, to die!

It no longer staggers the imagination to anticipate the mechanical fulfillment of our purpose to bring the air into the service of the human race. But many a brave sacrifice will still be demanded before the skies will yield to human ambition.

Meanwhile, the challenge of the infinite ether to the still weak wings of man will be heeded by the brave men and the brave race, at whatever cost of life and wealth and effort!

This price we pay whenever we try to find our way in a new element. Nor should we decry this sacrifice as vain and foolish.

For it is symbolic—not only of our ambition and pride of man's aspiration to soar with wings of the spirit in unending glory—conquest of the unknown.

In this and in every instance beyond mere foolhardiness it represents the dauntless courage of mankind.

The recent war certainly represented such spiritual heroism. Surely our American youth went over not to kill and to be killed—but to bring to an ideal the last full measure of devotion.

They were ready to dare and do and die.

It would be a wonderful achievement of the spirit if normal life, apart from war, found the average of us ready to live in that high and holy mood of heroism.

Seen loftily, the mere living is a summons to all that is heroic in our human nature.
